By the Associated Press.
SULLIVAN, Ind., July 15.—Twenty men were killed today by explosion and fire in the Glendora Coal Co.'s Baker mine, northeast of here. Jack Ogilvie, safety engineer of the Indiana Coal Operators' Association, said this afternoon.

Three bodies have been recovered and 17 additional bodies are piled in a corner of the mine shaft, according to Ogilvie. He said the 17 bodies could not be brought out until carbon monoxide gas cleared from the shaft.

Harry Keenan, mine superintendent, said 203 men were in the mine when the explosion occurred and that all except 20 came out alive. Three of those carried out alive were critically injured, Keenan said, and six suffered slight burns.

Only 25 or 30 in Area.

Keenan explained that, of the 203 men in the mine at the time of the explosion, only 25 or 30 were in the area of the blast. Ogilvie said it was a gas explosion but that the actual cause had not been determined.

The mine runs two and one-half miles underground toward Sullivan. The explosion was about one and three-fourths miles away from the tipple, Keenan said, and occurred shortly after the day shift had ended.

"The explosion picked me and my buddies up and rolled us like footballs," said J. N. Cox, who suffered head and body injuries. "Some of my buddies were thrown against the wall and they had no chance at all."

Ogilvie and Keenan said that most of those killed were crushed to death when hurled against the walls.

Southern Prince and English Freighter Collide in River Plate
For 25 Miles from Buenos Aires.

Buenos Aires, July 15.—Forty-nine passengers of the Furness
Prince line Southern Prince, including 38 from the United States, were removed to safety, last night, after the steamship and an English freighter, the Elstree Grange, collided in the River Plate.

The passengers were brought here aboard the cutter Southern Prince after the Southern Prince pumps failed to work and water poured into the engine room. Four tugs reached the ship as the passengers were removed.

The Southern Prince was about 25 miles out of Buenos Aires port when it and the freighter, bound for Liverpool, England, collided in a fog.

Mrs. Harry G. Hays, wife of a packing company official, who was returning from a visit to her home town, Kansas City, Kan., said the Southern Prince was creeping through the fog and had just blown two fog horn blasts when the Elstree Grange emerged from the fog and struck the liner amidships.

No one was injured. The freighter proceeded toward Buenos Aires under its own power.

GARNER TO WASHINGTON

Will Return to Capital After Attending Robinson Funeral.

By the Associated Press.
UVALDE, Tex., July 15.—Vice-President Garner announced today he would go to Washington directly from Little Rock, Ark., where Sunday he will attend funeral services for Senator Joseph T. Robinson. Garner will leave Uvalde Saturday. He has been in Uvalde about a month, fishing, attending to personal business and resting. His departure from Washington in the midst of the session caused political speculation.

Newton D. Baker suffers slight cerebral thrombosis

Condition "clearing up rapidly," Physician Says; Former War Secretary Stricken Monday.

By the Associated Press.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., July 15.—Newton D. Baker, Cleveland, O., lawyer and Secretary of War under President Wilson, is suffering from "slight cerebral thrombosis," an attending physician said today. The condition, also described by the physician as "a vascular accident," was said to be "clearing up rapidly."

Mr. Baker's condition is not alarming, and unless something most unexpected happens, he will leave for home by the first of the week," he said.

Samuel S. Leibowitz, New York attorney and chief of defense counsel, said he would "appeal the sentence to hell and back."

Calls Victoria Price Witness.

Judge W. W. Callahan said he would sentence Norris next week, probably Thursday.

Samuel S. Leibowitz, New York attorney and chief of defense counsel, said he would "appeal the sentence to hell and back."

There was no demonstration in the court room. It was only half filled as the jury filed in. The Negro sat stolidly. He said nothing, but leaned forward to hear the verdict.

Samuel S. Leibowitz, New York attorney and chief of defense counsel, said he would "appeal the sentence to hell and back."

Callie Victoria Price Witness.

Judge W. W. Callahan said in instructing the jury, "This suit is not Victoria Price vs. Clarence Norris. Victoria Price has no more to do with this case than any other witness. She was called and brought here by the State, to testify for the State."

The Judge also said, "Where the woman is white, there is a strong presumption under the law that she did not yield to the advances of a Negro."

Leibowitz accused Mrs. Price of "framing this rape story," in his argument before the jury.

The four Senators—Gillette of Iowa, Andrews of Florida, Johnson of Colorado and Brown of Michigan—refused to say anything more than that they had discussed the court bill with the President.

When they returned to the Capitol from the White House, they issued a statement as follows: "Senators Gillette, Andrews, Johnson and Brown met with the President and discussed the court reorganization plan this morning. We can make no further statement concerning it."

Reports spread that they had urged the chief executive to withdraw the bill and at least three of them told him flatly they were against it.

One Senator Brown, had done only last week for the compromise bill now pending in the Senate. Senator Gillette was publicly against the bill. The other two have been publicly non-committal.

At the same time, the opposition lined up another publicly-co-mitted Senator in Maloney of Connecticut, who said he expected to speak against the measure if debate was resumed. He made the public commitments against the bill 41, with 40 publicly for it, counting Brown, who was reported to have switched.

In the House, Representative Lucas of Illinois, Illinois, asked that the court fight be halted lest it "further impair and destroy the lives of great men that a free nation cannot afford to lose."

The witness, identifying himself as former Deputy Sheriff at Huntsville, home of Mrs. Price and Ruby Bates, testified he would not believe Mrs. Price under oath.

So Wallace, Huntsville Deputy Sheriff, asked similar questions to the witness.

"THIRD DEGREE" CHARGE MADE BY CHICAGO STRIKER

Union Man Testifies He Was Forced to Give Answers Suitable to the Assistant State's Attorney.

POLICE FIRED FIRST, WITNESS DECLARIES

Coroner's Jury to See Paramount News Reel of Shooting After Hearing of Testimony.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, July 15.—The Coroner's inquest into the killing of 10 steel strikers by police Memorial day was turned into a wrangle today, with CIO attorneys accusing the State's Attorney's office of pursuing an anti-union policy.

The four union lawyers jumped to their feet and shouted the charge after Assistant State's Attorney Michael Coghlan explained during questioning of a witness that his office in investigating the case was not concerned with the positions of strikers or employers in the case but merely was performing its official duties.

"It's apparent the State's Attorney's office is against trade unions and the CIO," the union counsel cried.

The dispute began during interrogation of Louis F. Selinik, a member of the union strike strategy committee at the Republic Steel Corporation plant in South Chicago.

Selinik said that, when Assistant State's Attorney Alexander Napoli questioned him June 1 at the South Chicago police station, he was forced to answer the way Napoli wanted him to.

Reputable Statement.

"It is evident this was a typical third degree by the State's Attorney's men," David Bentall, a CIO attorney, commented.

Coghlan, replying to the witness' charge he had been denied legal rights, said Selinik had waived immunity before the La Follette Senate Civil Liberties Committee and had no right to immunity here.

Another CIO attorney, Ben Myers, advised Selinik he was entitled to immunity and did not have to answer Coghlan but Coroner Frank J. Walsh interrupted to declare he would not countenance objections or other hindrances to testimony.

In reply to a question by Coghlan, Selinik said "no one" had advised him to change his testimony from the one given in the statement to Napoli at a police station.

Selinik yesterday had remanded the statement from the witness stand. In it, Napoli said, Selinik named Joseph Weber, a union leader, as one who "talked about arming the men with guns and clubs" before the march toward the Republican property.

"Never in Trouble Before."

As the State's Attorney's aids questioned him about the police station statement, Selinik said he couldn't remember making certain remarks and added he believed the statements were "mixed up."

"I never was in police trouble before," Selinik answered excitedly, "and when I joined the union and started to fight for my rights I never thought I'd be in anything like this."

He said the police treatment of the men at the station was "terrible" and the officers had taken wounded men there "who belonged in hospitals."

Selinik confirmed a statement given the State's Attorney in which he said "after we reached the police lines we were to use the camouflaged picket banners as clubs to break through the lines."

"Actually you were to use the signs as clubs," he was asked.

"Yes," was the reply.

A CIO organizer testified he saw a policeman draw his pistol and fire twice at retreating strikers during the massacre.

"I do believe that policeman was motivated solely by revenge," the organizer, Jeremiah Ingerson, a Republic cleric, added.

The witness said he could not tell whether the bullets hit anyone.

Coroner James J. Whalen announced the Paramount news reel of the massacre would be shown to the six-man Coroner's jury as part of the evidence. He said it would be screened after all other testimony has been submitted, probably late tomorrow.

FALL FROM TRAPEZE IS FATAL

Woman Circus Aerialist's Neck Broken; Home Was in Missouri.

GLASGOW, Mont., July 15.— Gladys Le Tournear, 25-year-old circus aerialist, died in a hospital here today from a broken neck suffered July 6 in a fall from a trapeze at Wheeler, Fort Peck Dam project town. Her husband, William G. Le Tournear, her trainer and coach, was at her bedside.

The aerialist, a member of the Siebrand Brothers circus troupe, was performing in a free outdoor attraction just before the opening of the main show at Wheeler, when she slipped from a trapeze and fell. She struck a rope, breaking her neck. Mrs. Le Tournear's home was in Nevada, Mo., where her mother resides.

STATE FUNERAL FOR ROBINSON 10 A.M. TOMORROW

Morning Service in the Senate Chamber Will Be Fourteenth of Its Kind in 70 Years.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, July 15.—Senators will join tomorrow in a state funeral for Democratic Leader Robinson, for 24 years one of their dominant members.

Leaders of both parties conferred today on arrangements for the service—the fourteenth of its kind in 70 years—in the gold-and-marble Senate chamber.

A few hours after it is held, 45 Senators and 23 Representatives will accompany the body on a special train to Little Rock, Ark., where another service and burial will take place Sunday afternoon. The train will carry the largest congressional delegation ever to attend the burial of a Senator.

Tomorrow's ceremony will begin at 10 a.m., when the flower-banked coffin will be carried to the central area of the Senate chamber, an arm's length from Robinson's vacant chair.

Seats of honor on each side will be reserved for Mrs. Robinson and relatives.

President Roosevelt, his Cabinet, Supreme Court Justices, high officers of the Army and Navy, and uniformed diplomats will be grouped near the Speaker's rostrum. Members of the House will cluster in the back of the chamber.

Admission to the galleries will be by tickets apportioned among members of the Senate.

The Rev. Zebulon T. Phillips, Senate chaplain, will open the service with a reading from the Scripture. There will be a hymn by a choir selected, not yet selected, a brief service by Dr. Phillips, another hymn and a benediction.

The last such funeral was conducted in March, 1933, for Senator Thomas J. Walsh (Dem.), Montana, who was to have become Attorney-General.

Work of the Senate will be virtually suspended until the congressional delegation returns Tuesday.

The Senate extended to the Supreme Court Justices today an invitation to attend the funeral service. Justice Butler, who is spending the summer at Blue Ridge Summit, Pa., is the only member of the Court near enough to reach Washington in time for the service. He has sent word that he will attend.

Arkansas Governor Likens Robinson to "Gallant Soldier."

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 15.—Voicing the sorrow of the State in the death of its senior Senator, Gov. Carl E. Bailey today paid this tribute to the late Joseph T. Robinson:

"Like a gallant soldier on the field of battle he covered himself with glory, reflected credit upon the people of the state who honored him, and died as I am sure he preferred to die—in the midst of the exactions which the properly placed responsibilities of his office placed upon him."

"It is each individual whom he served passes only one word of tribute; those tributes will constitute history."

"It is a tragic loss to the nation, the State and the party. It's simply another one of those situations in which a man literally gave his life to his work."

Gov. Bailey declined to discuss the question of a successor to the Senator. The 42-year-old Governor, in office since January, has been in sympathy with Robinson's fight for reorganization of the judiciary. He is known as an ardent "New Dealer," and his name was heard frequently as a possible successor when Robinson's name was discussed as an appointee to the Supreme Court.

Under State laws the Governor must call a special election within 120 days to fill the vacancy.

Others whose names have figured in senatorial race discussions are Representatives Claude A. Fuller, Eureka Springs; John McCellan, Malvern; and John E. Miller, Searcy; and Homer Adkins, Miller Revenue Collector here.

Gov. Bailey's advisers said a tem-

CHARGES 'UNHOLY ALLIANCE' BETWEEN CIO, GOVERNMENT

Pastor Tells 70-City Rally Discussing Anti-Strike Plan, "Don't Look to Congress."

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., July 15.—The Rev. John H. Stanton charged today there was an "unholy alliance between the CIO and the Federal Government." He spoke at the opening meeting of 170 men who gathered here from 70 cities to discuss the "Johnstown plan" of combatting strikes.

"They enjoy legal immunity from things that other American workers have to obey," declared the Johnstown minister in assailing followers of John L. Lewis, chairman of the CIO. "Don't look to Congress—take care of yourself."

Other speakers included Dr. Gustave W. Dyer, professor of economics at Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., and T. T. Williams, executive director of the League for Industrial Rights, New York City.

The meeting was called by the Johnstown Citizens' Committee, organizer of vigilantes at the beginning of a strike in the Bethlehem Steel Corporation's Cambria mills.

The steel workers' union asserted last night that E. T. Weir, opponent and chairman of the board of the National Steel Corporation, had contributed to the suppression of the Johnstown committee.

All Russia Aglow Over Moscow-California Flight

(Copyright, 1937, New York Tribune, Inc.)

MOSCOW, July 15.—All the traditional heroes of Russian folklore back to Ilya Muromets, the Robin Hood and Galahads and St. Georges of old Russia and of Bolsheviks are doing heavy literary and artistic work as Soviet newspapers and the radio attempt to popularize pride in Mikhail Gromov and his two companions on their record nonstop flight over the North Pole to California.

The meeting was called by the Johnstown Citizens' Committee, organizer of vigilantes at the beginning of a strike in the Bethlehem Steel Corporation's Cambria mills.

The steel workers' union asserted last night that E. T. Weir, opponent and chairman of the board of the National Steel Corporation, had contributed to the suppression of the Johnstown committee.

Foreign correspondents who have feared possible ostracism by Soviet citizens as a result of the recent anti-spionage campaign, were embarrassed today by their unsolicited popularity. Recognized as possible news sources, they were stopped by complete strangers desiring the latest bulletins.

Joseph E. Davies, American Ambassador, summed up the Soviet Union's own feeling about the flight in a statement to Soviet newspapers. He said:

"The significance of this second achievement is not so much breaking a world record as that it takes the first flight out of the stout, big and run, character and indicates behind the imagination, daring and boldness of these spindly aviators a thorough scientific, efficient and able organization directing the Soviet Union's aviation activities."

In the Soviet's mind, as the newspaper put it, "fairy tales have been true." After comparing Gromov and his co-pilot, Major Andrei Yushchenko, and the navigator, Sergei Danilin, with the legendary Russian giants of prehistoric times, the paper emphasized that they were also Bolsheviks.

The editorial added: "They are men of labor—labor for oneself and for society. They are simple Soviet men who have understood that there is no greater honor than to serve one's people and all humanity."

The robber, with a blue bandana handkerchief over the lower half of his face, was seen coming up an alley by Wanda Burdett, a teller. She thought he had a stick in a gun.

The robber walked into the bank through the front door, waved the weapon, and told Tom Watkins Jr. to "stick 'em up." He then turned to Miss Ramona Black, a teller, and said, "Let's have what you got."

He scooped up the cash in sight in his cage, stuffed it into the gun bag and stepped to another teller's cage occupied by Miss Mitchell.

Mitchell was able to save $100 in bills by showing them out of sight.

Among the customers in the bank was Sgt. O. L. Viets of the State highway patrol. Viets was in street clothes and unarmed.

The holdup man walked slowly out the front door, turned down the alley through which he had arrived and hurried to an automobile parked two blocks away. He took an indirect route to a cemetery with Watkins Jr. and Viets following in a car. At the cemetery, the robber turned down a sideroad and Watkins stopped following.

"We weren't armed and the money was insured, so there was no use risking getting killed," Watkins said.

Watkins said the robbers' car was a green Dodge coupe and bore a Missouri license tag.

Employment of 1000 men as guards for street intersections near schools, playgrounds, churches and residential centers has been suggested by the city as a WPA undertaking. An allotment of $355,200 for one year will be sought.

The proposal was urged by Maj. Albert Bond Lambert, president of the Board of Police Commissioners, who explained to a Post-Dispatch reporter today that the WPA guards would not have police power but could effect limited regulation of traffic after they had been thoroughly trained by traffic policemen. Many other cities have similar undertakings which have proven satisfactory, he said.

In a letter to the St. Louis WPA office, Lambert said the plan would relieve for more important police duty about 700 patrolmen now engaged in traffic work.

42 PLANES FIND NO EARHART CLEW WEST OF HOWLAND

Machines From Lexington Scan Wide Area Along International Date Line in Intense Heat.

FLYERS USE GREASE
TO PREVENT SUNBURN

Air Fleet, After Five Hours' Search, Returns to Carrier, Which Moves Northward.

By the Associated Press.
ABOARD THE AIRCRAFT CARRIER LEXINGTON NEAR HOWLAND ISLAND, July 15.—In fierce equatorial heat flyers of the Lexington continued yesterday their increasingly hopeless search in the South Pacific Ocean for Amelia Earhart Putnam and Frederick J. Noonan, navigator of her plane, missing 12 days on a world girdling flight.

Forty-two of the Lexington's 63 flying planes scanned a great area along the international date line west of Howland, the island which the aviatrix and Noonan failed to reach in an attempted 3,000-mile flight from New Guinea July 2.

The air fleet returned to the ship after five hours and reported no trace of the lost globe-girdling plane.

The heat was so intense the aviators smeared their faces with grease to prevent sunburn. The glistening shade was priceless on the sheltered decks of the Lexington.

Since the air fleet was covering both sides of the date line, those on the left flank were counting time as Thursday and the right flank operating as of Wednesday. The Lexington was moving northward.

Curtailment of the number of planes in operation came as a relief to the Lexington's mechanics, who had been working long hours under the hot equatorial sun to keep the air fleet in shape.

In the first of the Lexington's aerial searching operations Tuesday, 60 planes were used.

Child Killed in Fall from Window.
ROCKFORD, Ill., July 15.—Patricia Ann Freeman, 21 months old, fell to her death yesterday from the fourth floor window of a hospital. The little girl had accompanied her father and a brother to the hospital to visit her mother, who gave birth to a son last Monday. She fell from the window when a screen gave way.

SIX QUESTIONED ON RACKETS AND MURDER OF DUNN

Police Try to Link Killing of Gambling Hall Bouncer With His Activities in Union Circles.

Continuing their investigation of the murder of "Pudgie" Dunn, twice convicted murderer and gambling house "bouncer," police today resumed questioning six men in an effort to learn about the activities of gangsters and former convicts in labor rackets in St. Louis.

At the same time three unions—bartenders, waiters and miscellaneous hotel workers—began "cleaning house."

An open verdict of homicide "at the hands of unknown parties" was returned at the inquest into the murder of the husky "bouncer," who was 41 years old and weighed 205 pounds, and who was killed with a shotgun at 3:30 a. m. yesterday as he was about to enter an apartment house at 758 Goodfellow boulevard, where he lived with his wife and stepdaughter. The killer escaped.

Moran Under Indictment.

Those being questioned were: John R. (Bab) Moran, who for the last two months was manager of the Miscellaneous Hotel Workers Local 120, and who hired Dunn as a $50-a-week organizer. He is under indictment in the murder of John C. Johnson, Negro State's witness in the Kelley kidnaping case.

Sylvester (Babe) Baldwin, organizer for the Bartenders' Union, whose police record includes a reformatory sentence for burglary, a prison sentence for a holdup and who was tried for the murder of Toddie V. Phelps, Overland bank cashier. He was paroled on the reformatory sentence, the robbery case was reversed and later dismissed, and James McGauley, a bootlegger, was subsequently convicted of the Phelps murder.

Joseph Costello, who was dropped today from membership in Waiters' Union, Local 20, after being ousted on Tuesday from his $50-a-week job as organizer. Costello has a record of numerous arrests and was once under charge of mail and robbery in St. Clair County. The charges were dismissed when the State failed to produce an important witness.

Lyle Shaw ousted with Costello from the Waiters' Union. Harvey Beavers and Rolla

His Name was Magic to Kentucky Distillers!

And rightly so! For, Old James Crow made whiskey the like of which was never known before—even to Kentucky experts! In fact, it was so good that the name Old Crow became the sterling mark of quality in whiskey!

Time has only deepened the respect for this famous whiskey, for its quality has always been supreme.

HAMILTON-BROWN CIO UNION RENEWS MAJORITY CLAIM

Will Offer Certified Report Showing 374 Union (Mo.) Applications Were Filed May 18.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

UNION, Mo., July 15.—National Labor Relations Board attorneys and officers of the United Shoe Workers of America declared today that they were ready to submit ample proof that the union represented a majority of the Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co.'s employees here on May 17.

It was on that date, complainants against the company alleged, that the management refused to deal with United Shoe Workers as a collective bargaining agency. When the N. L. R. B. inquiry into charges of unfair labor practices against the company was resumed today, David C. Shaw of St. Louis, board attorney, said he had received a certificate from the union's national headquarters at Boston, which showed that 374 membership applications from the unit here were filed May 18. The applications, Shaw asserted, were mailed from May 16.

The company today had not complied with requests made early in the hearing to submit its payroll as of May 17. However, at the time of a strike, March 31, company executives said that about 750 workers were affected. Union officers told Post-Dispatch reporter that the figure included scores of supervisory employees and office workers not eligible to union membership.

Associates at the "Ringside" said the bouncer had boasted about "my new racket." Dunn formerly worked as a guard at the Mounds Club, an other East Side gambling place, and also in gambling houses in Detroit, following his release from a Michigan prison about 18 months ago.

Douglas' "Ringside" establishment at 313 Missouri avenue, half a block from the East St. Louis police station, was bombed last March. Subsequently a Venice gambling place was bombed, with indication of a reprisal. There has been no further trouble and persons familiar with the situation asserted that a truce had been arranged. Doyle's place now appears to be doing a flourishing business. When a Post-Dispatch reporter called there yesterday afternoon about 150 men were gathered around the dice tables or were placing race horse bets at the handbook operated on the premises.

Union "Cleans House."

Publicly given the efforts of gangsters and ex-convicts to "muscle in" on the labor unions resulted in a house cleaning at a meeting last night of the Miscellaneous Hotel Workers at Carpenters Hall. Miss Kitty Amsler, international union representative, announced that "Bab" Moran had resigned and that she was taking over the jobs of president and manager until next December, when an election will be held. She declared all other offices vacated and appointed new temporary officers, including Thomas J. O'Donnell, who furnished $5000 bond to qualify for the post of financial secretary.

The union, organized last May shortly before the hotel strike here, has about 3000 members, the majority Negroes. It was in this organization and several others representing hotel and restaurant employees that the "muscle" efforts were chiefly made. Miss Amsler said to a reporter that she drafted Moran from the Bartenders' Union in May, not knowing he was under indictment for murder.

"He was the perfect gentleman, drew only four pay checks for a total of $300, and resigned off his own free will because, he explained, the public had no connection with the union and hunting the organization," Miss Amsler added.

Miss Amsler said Moran was appointed to the Bartenders' Union by an international union officer. In the Waiters' Union, she said, Carl Fiorita, Cuckoo gangster, was an organizer at $50 a week until he was sentenced to Leavenworth penitentiary for two years last March on pleas of guilty to violation of the internal revenue laws. The books of the Waiters' Union are now being audited at the request of the membership, Miss Amsler asserted.

Word of the St. Louis situation reached Edward Fiore, national president of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees' International Alliance, with headquarters at Buffalo, N. Y., Miss Amsler stated, and Fiore urged her to either take over the active management of the Miscellaneous Hotel Workers Local 43, or disband the organization.

Dunn was a member of the Miscellaneous Hotel Workers since May, although not employed at a hotel. Miss Amsler said she was not personally acquainted with him and he had worked only four weeks as an organizer.

George C. Prouty of Washington, D. C., personal representative of William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, with which the hotel unions are affiliated, arrived in St. Louis yesterday to investigate the union situation.

DECATUR PAPER AND GUILD TO RESUME NEGOTIATIONS

Company to Publish Combined Evening and Morning Edition This Afternoon

By the Associated Press.

DECATUR, Ill., July 15.—A combined edition of the Morning Herald and Evening Review, strike-suspended since Saturday, was to be published this afternoon, it was announced today by H. C. Schaub, president of the Decatur Newspapers, Inc. An attempt to publish yesterday failed for lack of pressmen.

Schaub said both the day and night forces of typographical and press room workers entered the plant without interference by pickets. Also at work, he said, were the 16 non-striking employees of the news department staff of 33.

Arrangements were also made to resume negotiations with the American Newspaper Guild.

Charles Swart, president of the guild unit at Decatur, said representatives of the guild would meet with the management and that mass picketing of the newspaper plant would be halted during the negotiations.

Representatives of the guild in the negotiations will be William Davy of Cleveland, a member of the national executive board; James Tripp of Peoria, and Douglas Jacobs of St. Louis.

Joseph Vincent, a candidate from the State Department of Labor, conferred with representatives of the management.

CLOUDBURST IN ENGLAND

Travel Halted and Communications Broken by Storm.

By the Associated Press.

WEYMOUTH, England, July 15.—A cloudburst today temporarily halted travel and communications in the southwest area where the Royal Air Force is staging its large scale war games. Streets were flooded in Weymouth and Bristol. A landslide blocked a railway cut with passengers was trapped in five feet of water during the height of the storm. The passengers escaped.

Royal Air Force bombers crashed at Jordans, Somersettshire, but the pilot and two aids were not injured. Wreckage of the plane blocked the London-Taunton road.

FIRED BY FORD CO. ON 'STOOL PIGEON' TIP, WORKER SAYS

Testifies at Labor Board Session His Record Was Altered to Show That He Quit.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, July 15.—A discharged Ford Motor Co. employee told a National Labor Relations Board examiner today he believed his dismissal May 19 was the result of reports made by a man he described as a "stool pigeon."

Leo J. Krugh, appearing at the N. L. R. B. hearing on a complaint charging the Ford company with unfair labor practices, said he believed S. J. Feeney had noted that Krugh drove other Ford workmen to union meetings, and added that Feeney once warned him to move from a Dearborn neighborhood because Ford workers residing there were "85 to 90 per cent union."

Krugh said Feeney was a "Detroit Times" distributor.

John J. Dovey, former employee of the Ford cement plant, testified that after he was discharged, his wife was told he was "dangerous" because he "talked about the union."

He denied he was a member of the United Automobile Workers of America, but said his trouble with his employers started after he defended John L. Lewis, head of the Committee for Industrial Organization, in a conversation with his foreman.

Says Record Was Altered.

When he asked for a transfer to another department, Dovey said, he found his record had been altered without his consent to show he had "quit."

Mrs. Dovey and their four children then talked with Paul Selancy, one of the service men who police Ford property, the witness said, and was told:

"He is very dangerous to have around the place. He argues with the men and talks about the union."

After that, however, Dovey said, the cement plant superintendent requested that job be found for him in another department, informing the employment office he was "an Al Steamer fitter." He was given a release card; he said, but as he was waiting in line for a job, the company stopped hiring.

While the N. L. R. B. hearing proceeded, Judge Ralph W. Liddy of Common Pleas Court opened his examination of eight of nine men named in assault warrants issued after a grand jury inquiry into the beating of U. A. W. organizers outside Ford's Dearborn plant May 26.

The clash at the plant gates took place when union members started to distribute literature to workers changing shifts.

U. A. W. Opens First Drive to Organize Ford's Big Eastern Plant.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, July 15.—The C. O.'s United Automobile Workers of America began today its first open drive to organize the 3700 workers in the Ford Motor Co.'s assembly plant here.

Supported by the Workers' Defense League, organizers were ordered to the gates of the large Ford plant to distribute union literature to employees this afternoon.

The union men, Police Lieutenant Alexander Flannery said, had obtained pamphlet distribution permits required by an Edgewater ordinance.

JUDGE DAVIS ORDERS AUDIT OF HOWARD CLEANERS INC.

Also Cuts Salaries; President to Get $25 a Week Instead of $1000 a Month.

An audit of the business and accounts of Howards Cleaners, Inc., under reorganization in Federal Court, was ordered today by District Judge Charles B. Davis, who named Schuessler, Keller & Co., certified public accountants, to make the audit.

Judge Davis, in consultation with the firm's lawyer, Charles Spohr, also revised the company's salary roll downward. J. Arthur Davis, president of the company, instead of $1000 a month salary and $25 a week expenses, will receive $25 a week salary only. The manager was cut from $100 to $75 a week, and the plant superintendent from $55 to $45 a week.

The cleaning company, in its petition for reorganization under the bankruptcy laws, stated that its financial difficulties had been brought about by strikes, that competing concerns had fostered and encouraged the strikes, and that the competitors sought to force Howards to raise its prices.

AT WORK IN MINES AND MILLS

Steel Corporation Says All But Two Plants Are Open; Strikers Dispute Figures.

CLEVELAND, July 15.—The Republic Steel Corporation reported today that 37,101 employees were at work in its mines and mills as of July 13. Only the bar mill at Malone, Ill., and the N. & G. Taylor Co. plant in Cumberland, Md., remain closed, the statement said. The two plants employ 350 men.

Present employment, the statement said, "represents 74.4 per cent of the average plant and mine employment of 49,894 in April, the last full month of operations before the steel strike, and reflected an increase of about 8000 since July 6." Strike leaders have disputed the employment figures of the company.

REBUILDING STARTED AT VENICE ON MCKINLEY BRIDGE APPROACH

Illinois Terminal System Expects Fire-Destroyed Trestle to Be Replaced Sept. 1.

The Illinois Terminal System has begun reconstruction of the 1000-foot section of wooden trestle in Venice, destroyed by fire Monday, and expects to have the work completed by Sept. 1. Andrew P. Titus, president of the railroad, said a steel and wood structure will replace the section, part of the eastern rail approach to McKinley Bridge.

Meanwhile passenger and freight trains which formerly used the approach are being rerouted over surface tracks in Venice, Madison and Granite City, with no interruption in schedule. The fire, started by a short circuit between a trolley wire and rail, did not affect the bridge proper, or the automobile approach.

Enzo Fiermonte Escapes Trial.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 15.—Enzo Fiermonte, the former prize fighter and husband of Mrs. Madeline Force Astor, Dick Fiermonte, went to Magistrate's Court in Flushing today to answer a summons for striking a photographer July 8, but the whole thing was called off. "It was all an accident," his lawyer, Sidney Rosenthal, told Magistrate John D. Mason. The photographer John Drennan, was inclined to agree.

Wage Increase in Hosiery Mills.
PHILADELPHIA, July 15.—Emil Rieve, president of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers, announced today an agreement with the Full Fashioned Hosiery Manufacturers of America, Inc., providing wage increases ranging from 8 to 10 per cent for 50,000 union workers. The contract replaces an agreement which expired recently covering workers in more than 50 mills in the United States.

Urging participation in the excursion, W. H. Wilcockson, chairman of the committee in charge of the trip, said, "Besides affording an extremely enjoyable outing, an annual State Fair trip has proved to be worth while from a business standpoint, in that it enables St. Louis business men to become acquainted with people in the Sedalia region and to build good will for St. Louis business.

WAGES-HOUR BILL ASSAILED BY SOUTHERN INDUSTRIALISTS

Ex-Head of Lumber Exporters Says John L. Lewis Would Dominate Regulatory Board. By the Associated Press.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 15.—Southern industrialists assailed the Black-Connery minimum wages and hours bill here yesterday and predicted "catastrophe" for Southern agriculture and industry should it be passed by Congress. Speakers said the South would suffer at the expense of the industrial North and East.

Lee Robinson of Mobile, Alabama, former president of the National Lumber Exporters' Association, said John L. Lewis would dominate the board which the bill would set up to regulate hours and wages.

R. C. Fulbright of Washington, D. C., general counsel for the Southern Pine Association, urged the South and particularly the Southern lumber industry to endeavor to defeat the administration's Supreme Court bill and then the Black-Connery bill.

LAWYER INDICTED WITH 11 OTHERS FOR POLICY RACKET

Attorney for Late Dutch Schultz Sought With Other Alleged Bosses of Gambling.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 15.—Police have begun arresting 12 men indicted as participants in the New York policy racket.

Dan L. Smith, who was dismissed from the police force here in 1929 on the last of a long list of charges he faced during 17 years, was arrested when he entered the office of his private detective agency.

Still missing are Richard J. (Dixie) Davis, an attorney, and seven others named in the indictments returned by an extraordinary grand jury before Supreme Court Justice Ferdinand Pecora yesterday. Davis was lawyer for the late Arthur (Dutch) Schultz. The indictment alleges they bossed the policy racket smashed on Jan. 13 by special rackets Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey.

Two years ago, Davis testified before Commissioner of Accounts Paul Balschand that the annual take of the policy games here was $500,000,000, he estimated. Dewey's men marked down to $10,000,000.

Schultz, who is named in the indictments under his real name of Fleggenheimer, did not live to face trial on the charges prepared against him by Dewey. He was killed as he sat at a table in a New Jersey tavern Oct. 22, 1935. Shot down with him were Abraham Landau, alias Abe the killer, and Otto Berman, alias Abadaba, who also were indicted yesterday.

There will be no search for Masio Joseph Ison, alleged policy banker, who is in Tombs prison for lack of $50,000 bail, or Martin Weintraub, an attorney, who posted $20,000 bail for his freedom.

Another man indicted, Alexander Pompei, is being held in Mexico, D. F., as a fugitive and is fighting extradition. Still another, Abraham Weinberg, has been reported dead.

Alarm Sent Out for Others.

For the others of the accused men, police have broadcast an eight-state alarm. They are: George Weinberg, brother of Abraham, who reputedly succeeded his brother as first lieutenant to Schultz; John Cooney; Sol Girsch; Harry Schoenhaus, "Big Harry"; Harry Wolf, "Little Harry"; and Joseph Matthias Ison, believed to be in France.

Schultz organized the policy, or numbers, racket in 1930. Bettors, recruited from all walks of life, gamble from a few cents to dollars, selecting any number of three figures. Winners are paid at the ratio of 500 to 1, the winning number generally being based on the parimutuel figures of a given number of horse races at a given track. The indictments charge that this ring not only operated the gambling business, but also determined who would win by fixing the betting at the tracks concerned.

CUT BY BROKEN VENTILATOR, STENOGRAPHER SEEKS $50,000

Says Telephone Company Commercial Supervisor Opened Window Over Her Protest.

Suit for $50,000 damages, growing out of injuries alleged to have been suffered when a glass ventilator broke when a window was opened, was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Miss Marie K. Pate, 6224 Berthold avenue, against William J. Van Nice, a commercial supervisor for the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

She charges that Van Nice opened a window near her desk over her protest March 4, 1936, when she was employed as a stenographer at the telephone company offices, 1010 Pine street. When the ventilator shattered, she says, she inhaled fragments of glass, injuring her left lung, and her eyelids were cut.

Van Nice could not be reached. Miss Pate's attorney said to a Post-Dispatch reporter that the State Workmen's Compensation Commission had rejected her claim against the telephone company in the case.

NORMAN THOMAS URGES INQUIRY IN MASSILLION CLASH

Visits Ohio Centers and Wires La Follette That Police Made Unprovoked Attack.

By the Associated Press.

CANTON, O., July 15.—Norman Thomas, Socialist party candidate for President last year, toured the picket lines at Republic Steel Corporation plants in Canton and Massillon yesterday and announced he would forward a report of his observations to the La Follette Civil Liberties Committee.

Thomas inspected the CIO headquarters building at Massillon, where two men were killed in a clash between police and strikers Sunday night, and said, "this is the worst piece of vandalism destruction without motive I have ever seen."

Thomas sent the following telegram to Senator Robert La Follette:

"Your committee must be continued to investigate at once events Sunday night and Monday morning at Massillon. What I have seen and heard worst in my experience. Unprovoked attack by police and deputies, apparently armed by Republic Steel, under direction of certain Maj. Curley, whose official position is dubious, smashed union headquarters, killed two and third

EXECUTIVE PAY INCREASES
REPORTED BY CORPORATIONS

Salary of President of Sears, Roebuck & Co. Advanced to $80,000 a Year.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, July 15.—Stone & Webster, Inc., and the Houdaille-Hershey Corporation reported to the Securities Commission yester-17 AMERICANS KILLED
IN TORPEDOING OF SHIP

(Copyright, 1937.)
VALÈNCIA, Spain, July 15.—Seventeen American sailors out of 67 aboard the steamer Ciudad de Barcelona were killed when the ship was torpedoed near Barcelona, an American survivor disclosed here yesterday.

The question of whether American volunteers were aboard had been disputed.

The ship was torpedoed one mile off Malgrat, north of Barcelona, at 1:30 p. m. on May 30. It sank in five minutes with a loss of 50 volunteers and about the same number of the crew. The Ciudad de Barcelona was carrying 300 volunteers and a cargo of war material from Marseilles, France, to Barcelona. Two torpedoes missed the ship, but a third hit amidships with a terrific explosion, the survivor said. Many crew members below decks were killed by the explosion. Many volunteers were saved by the fact they had just gone to the deck after an instruction meeting. Some were blown into the water and drowned because they were too badly hurt to swim.

The ship sank too quickly for boats to be lowered, the survivor said, but a big Spanish naval seaplane on patrol saved some of the men and fishing boats saved others.

Survivors were warned not to mention the sinking. They were not told how many were dead and because they were divided into small groups and segregated it was only when they assembled at a camp that they were able to check up on the casualties. Most of them now are fighting against the Spanish insurgents.

The Ciudad de Barcelona had been in Marseilles for two days. There the volunteers went ashore freely and their presence was known. Italian and German merchantmen also were there and Spanish authorities charged they tipped off an Italian submarine.

Earlier reports were that 50 Americans were killed in the sinking of the Ciudad de Barcelona.

CAPONE'S WIFE SEEKS REFUND

Says Income Taxes Were Illegally Assessed Against Her.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., July 15.—Mae Capone, wife of Federal Prisoner Al Capone, filed suit in United States District Court here yesterday against J. Edwin Larsen, Collector of Internal Revenue in Florida, for return of $52,103 in taxes.

Her suit alleged the taxes and penalties were illegally assessed against her because her husband had transferred to her the Miami Beach home he bought in 1928. The suit said the taxes were based on the Government's claims against him for income taxes for the years 1926 to 1929, inclusive. She said she petitioned for a refund but had not been granted one. The statement that taxes and penalties were collected illegally is based on an allegation that Capone had ample funds to pay the taxes, but the Government did not try to collect directly from him before obtaining a lien on the home.

Man Found Dead Beside Railway.
SHELBYVILLE, Ill., July 15.—The body of a young man identified as that of Luther D. Madison, 24 years old of Hatton, Ill., was found early today near the Big Four Railroad freight station right-of-way. Apparently he had fallen or been thrown from a train which passed through here at 3 a. m. Police said all marks of identification had been removed from his clothing and his pockets emptied.

U.C. Unit Announces 1250 Members.

John Doherty, organizer for the Workers' Organizing Committee, announced today that he is obtaining charters for 11 local unions, representing 1250 men, in the Kansas City area.

Doherty has sent four assistants, headed by Hugh Lyons, to Kansas City, and Kansas City, Kan., to begin steel workers. There is a potential membership of 4000 in this area, he estimated.

The Workers' Organizing Committee, a CIO unit, has obtained 1250 members in the St. Louis industrial district, Doherty stated.

The agreement to set up a buying agency to stabilize prices was made with J. C. Lettice, representing the Federal corporation, at a conference at which growers were represented.

The Federal corporation would buy a specified number of carloads at a stated price, Mayes said, even though the commercial price should go below it. Potatoes so bought would be turned over to relief agencies.

Mayes said he understood a similar agreement is in effect in the Kaw Valley district of Kansas, and that purchase of 150 carloads at 75 cents a bushel had been guaranteed there.

The agreement will not be effective unless approved in Washington.

POTATO-PURCHASE AGREEMENT FOR ORRICK, MO., DISTRICT

Under Plan, Federal Corporation Is to Buy Certain Amount at Specified Price.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. — A tentative agreement for purchase of surplus potatoes in the Orrick (Mo.) district by the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation was announced last night by Jewell Mayes, State Commissioner of Agriculture.

The agreement to set up a buying agency to stabilize prices was made with J. C. Lettice, representing the Federal corporation, at a conference at which growers were represented.

The Federal corporation would buy a specified number of carloads at a stated price, Mayes said, even though the commercial price should go below it. Potatoes so bought would be turned over to relief agencies.

RECEIVERS WANT TO CUT WABASH CAPITALIZATION

Under Reorganization Plan Filed in U. S. Court They Seek 45 Per Cent Reduction.

Reduction of capitalization of the Wabash Railroad from $318,930,464 to $187,439,946 and of annual fixed charges from $7,595,858 to $3,232,527 is contemplated in a reorganization plan filed in United States District Court yesterday by the receivers. The railroad went into consent receiver status Dec. 1, 1931.

Under the plan, which calls for consolidation of the Wabash and its affiliate, the Ann Arbor Railroad, new shares and bonds totaling $187,439,946 would be issued in exchanges, in various state proportions, for existing capital is-

By the Associated Press.

GREENFIELD, Mass. — Thomas E. Elder, 54 years old, retired dean of Mount Hermon School, was indicted yesterday on charges of assault with a gun with intent to murder S. Allen Norton, former school cashier.

The grand jury also in another count charged the educator with assault on Norton with a gun on May 25, "putting him in fear of bodily harm."

Elder was arrested May 26 at his home in Alton, N. H., after Norton complained to the Greenfield police that the former dean confronted him, the night before, and, drawing a shotgun from beneath his clothing, said: "Norton, I want to see you."

Norton said he fled and no shot

INDIVIDUALS NOT TO BE CALLED IN TAX INQUIRY

None Has Volunteered to Testify and Chairman Doughton Says Needed Data Is at Hand.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Chairman Doughton said today the Congressional Tax Inquiry Committee had abandoned any idea of subpoenaing individuals described by Treasury officials as having avoided taxes. None has volunteered to testify, Doughton said.

"We have sufficient information, I believe," he said, "on which to base legislation designed to reduce tax avoidance."

The committee will meet in closed session early next week. By that time, Doughton asserted, congressional bill drafters expect to have measures ready for submission.

The chairman predicted Congress would pass legislation to close tax loopholes this session even though the death of Senate Leader Robinson should hasten adjournment.

One protest, from Jessie B. du Pont, wife of the late Alfred I. du Pont, went into the committee's records today.

It replied to testimony of Arthur L. Kent, Treasury attorney, that du Pont or his estate would have paid $200,000 more in taxes from 1931 to 1935 had he not transferred more than $1,000,000 worth of property to Nemours, Inc., a personal holding company.

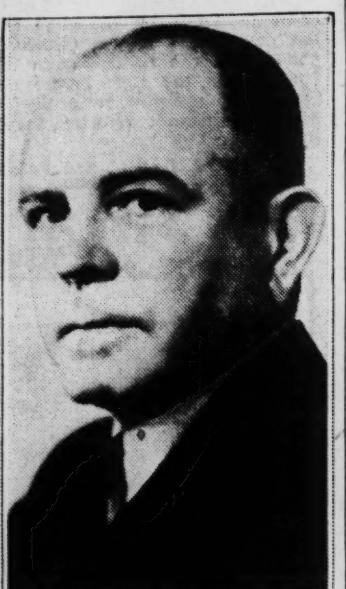

The protest, Kent said, consisted primarily of a "palatial residence in Wilmington, Del." He said $2,000,000 in stock was transferred to the holding company and its income used to "meet the expenses of the mansion."

These expenses, which about equaled the income from the securities, Kent said, were deducted from the holding company's taxable income, so that the latter paid "practically no tax."

Mrs. du Pont wired the committee that Kent's statement and the inferences to be drawn from it "are misleading, unwarranted and unjust."

"Not a dollar of the income of Nemours, Inc.," she said, "from the securities I mentioned was ever used in the payment of any household expenses of Mr. du Pont or of any member of his family."

She said du Pont had expected to construct on part of his Delaware property the first unit of a hospital for crippled children and that he provided in his will for the structure.

The telegram, made public by Mrs. du Pont on July 2, was not inserted in the record until the Treasury had had an opportunity to prepare a statement that no revision of Kent's testimony was required. It noted that "no actual gift of the property to charity was made during Mr. du Pont's lifetime."

the tactics of the steel corporations involved.

The majority of the committee, Bridges alone dissenting, reported to the Senate that it found no justification for a Senate investigation and recommended that charges against the steel companies be referred to the La Follette Civil Liberties Committee.

Bridges made 20 findings of facts on which he based the demand for further action by the Senate.

The postoffice, he said, had taken sides because it "refused to deliver mail."

"There was substantial evidence introduced to show the existence of an agreement, or agreements, between postal officials and outside persons as to the delivery, or non-delivery, of the mails and as to the censoring of United States mail by the outside persons."

Charging Postmaster-General Farley, with "censorship of the mails," Bridges complained that Farley was not called by the committee to testify despite the senator's request that he be summoned.

PHILADELPHIA, July 15.—The Cardinals than they had bargained for, but, consider of the team, the added rest is welcome. To necessary by yesterday's postponement, was of rain. Two games will be played tomorrow.

Lon Warneke, who was to have pitched one of the games today, was talking about pitching. That being the Cardinals' great problem of the moment and Warneke being the outstanding figure that he is in the curve-throwing profession, it was interesting.

The Arkansas Hummingbird was nudged into conversation by a question about his current slump?

"I never pitched good in the first part of the season except one year, my first in the National League," he replied.
"I don't know. Pitching's a hard thing to figure. But I I'm not discouraged. Now you take the other day against the Reds, for instance. They never have given me much trouble. And when I was warming up I'd a bet they wouldn't get a loud foul off me. And what happened? They gave me a good shellacking—13 hits, four homers and 10 runs in four and two-thirds innings."

"Other days I've warmed up and felt terrible. Arm stiff and control bad and curve not breaking. But I go out and pitch a shutout. It's hard to figure pitching. But I feel strong. I think I've got about as much speed as ever, and I've evened up my curve so it's and win some games. It certainly ain't condition that's my trouble.
I can chase flies for an hour without drawing a deep breath, and I feel great. Maybe I feel too good."

Talk turned to young pitchers.

Youngsters Have Big Edge.

"They've got a big edge over us older fellas," Lon said. "They have stuff most all the time. When you get older there's days when your fast ball seems as fast as usual, but it don't move. I mean there's no hop on it. And if you don't have a hop on your fast ball, those bats will cause you a lot of trouble. And when you're young and got that zip, you don't have to bother much about the hitters.
You can tell 'em what's coming and they can't hit it. One day in a certain Eastern city when I was with the Cubs we had every pitching sign of the other club, but even knowing just what was coming we got shut out with one hit."

"That's one trouble with a young pitcher. He's a wonder in the minors and when he comes up to the big leagues he thinks he ought to win just as easy. But the big leagues hit harder and more frequently and they're smarter. And before the new pitcher learns the difference, he gets blasted a few times, then tries to work harder than he did in the minors, and first thing you know he's lost his confidence and ain't no good at all."

Harrell Should Be Winner.

"We got one young pitcher on this club who ought to win as many as anybody in the league. Yes, you guessed him. Harrell. He's got speed and curves. I don't know.
Maybe he needs three or four victories to give him the confidence. That's one trouble with a young pitcher. He's a wonder in the minors
and when he comes up to the big leagues he thinks he ought to win just as easy. But the big leagues hit harder and more frequently and they're smarter. And before the new pitcher learns the difference, he gets blasted a few times, then tries to work harder
than he did in the minors, and
first thing you know he's lost his confidence and ain't no good at all."

Manager Frisch was uncertain about his pitching plans for the second game tomorrow, but probably will use St. Johnson or Mike Ryba.

Each remaining series of the trip includes a doubleheader, and the next 10 days will be a severe test for the pitching staff.

Cards' Double Bill With Philadelphia Is Postponed by Rain

By J. Roy Stockton

Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

PHILADELPHIA, July 15.—The Cardinals are getting more rest than they had bargained for, but, considering the present condition of the team, the added rest is welcome. Today's double-header, made necessary by yesterday's postponement, was called off early because of rain. Two games will be played tomorrow and on Aug. 26.

Lon Warneke, who was to have pitched one of the games today, was talking about pitching. That being the Cardinals' great problem of the moment and Warneke being the outstanding figure that he is in the curve-throwing profession, it was interesting.

The Arkansas Hummingbird was nudged into conversation by a question about himself. How did he account for his current slump?

"I never pitched good in the first part of the season except one year, myself in the National League," he replied. "I don't know. Pitching's a hard thing to figure. But while I don't like it a blamed bit, I'm not discouraged. Now you take the other day against the Reds, for instance. They never have given me much trouble. And when I was warming up I'd a bet they wouldn't get a loud foul off me. And what happened? They gave me a good shellakin'—13 hits, four homers and 10 runs in four and two-thirds innings."

One day in a certain Eastern city when I was with the Cubs we had every pitching sign of the other club, but even knowing just what was coming we got shut out with one hit."

"That sign-stealing business is mostly the bunk, any how. When I'm right I can tell the hitters what's coming and it don't do 'em much good. And if you think the other team has your signs and you just cross up one hitter, the rest of them won't be sure and having the signs won't do 'em any good."

Harrell Should Be Winner.

"We got one young pitcher on this club who ought to win as many as anybody in the league. Yes, you guessed him. Harrell. He's got speed and curves. I don't know. Maybe he needs three or four victories to give him the confidence. That's one trouble with a young pitcher. And before the new pitcher learns the difference, he gets blasted a few times, then tries to work harder and harder, and it's not good at all."

Manager Frisch was uncertain about his pitching plans for the second game tomorrow, but probably will use St. Johnson or Mike Ryba.

YALE GOLFERS WIN FROM ST. ANDREWS

By the Associated Press. ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, July 15.—The Yale University golf team today defeated St. Andrews University, 8 to 6, over the old St. Andrews course.

The Americans lost this morning's foursomes, 3 to 2, but in the afternoon captured six of the 10 singles matches and halved one.

Paul Jamison of St. Louis is a member of the Yale squad.

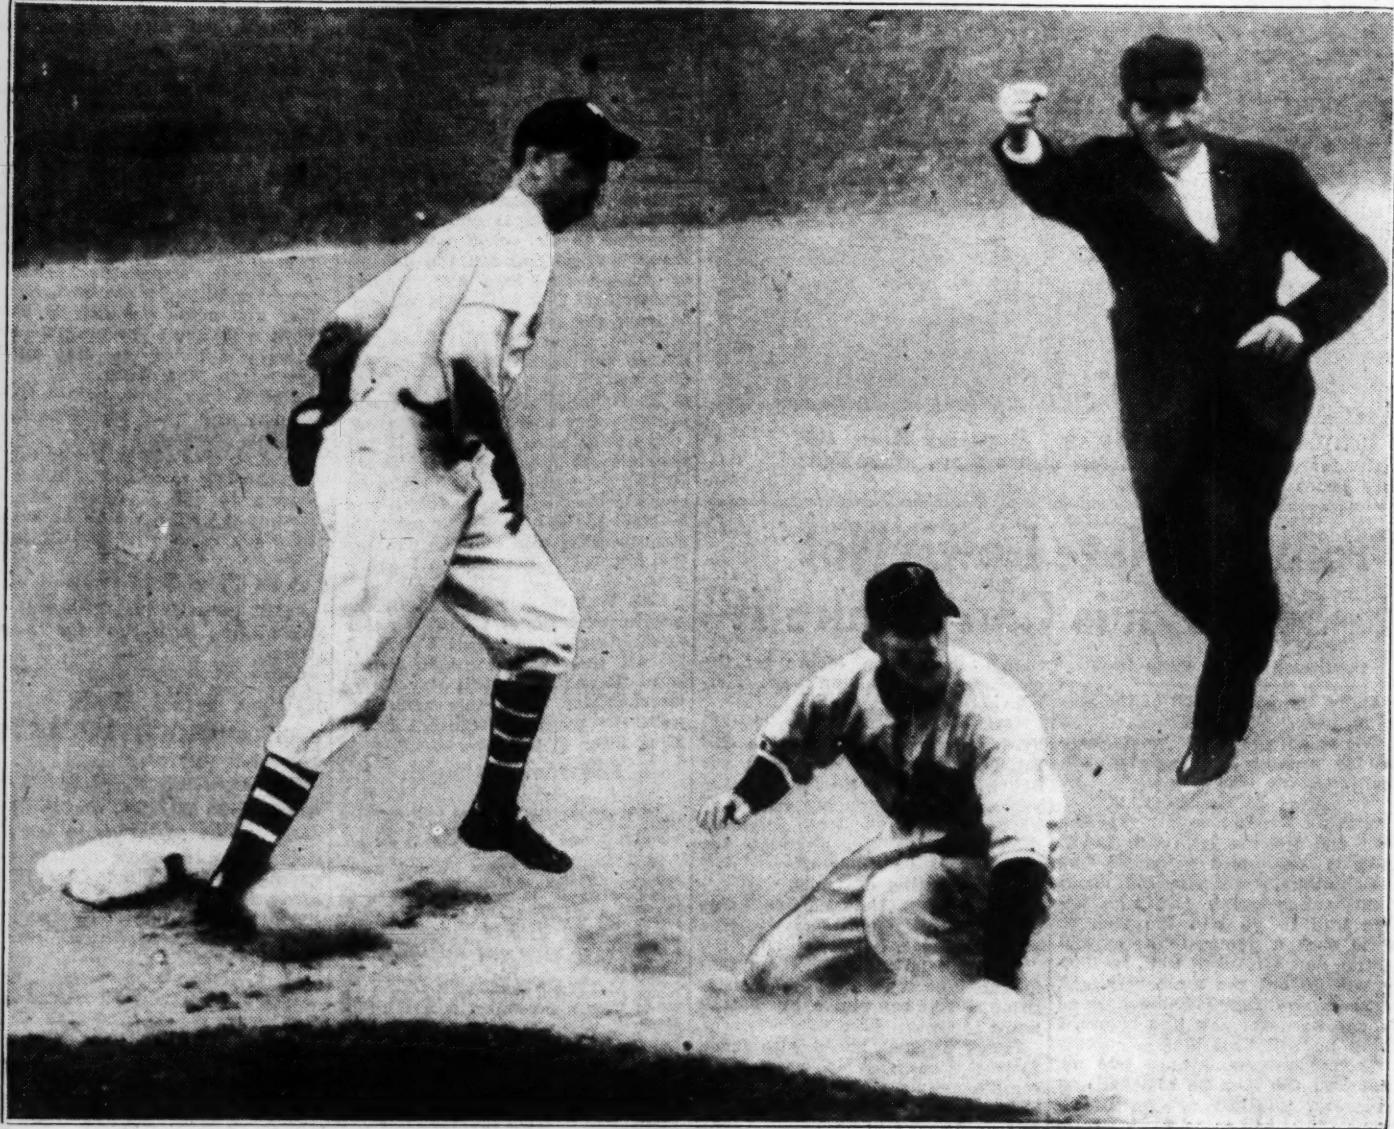

Harris Is Tennis Winner.

By the Associated Press.

DENVER, July 15.—Defending champion Charles Harris of West Palm Beach, Fla., scored a fourth consecutive victory over Joe Lucia of Houston, Tex., in the Colorado Open tennis tournament today. The score was 6-1, 6-0.

Nurses added he was resting well.

With Hubbell Pitching, the Giants Play Like Champions

Pep Young, Pittsburgh second baseman, being called out at second base by Umpire Sears as the start of a double-play lay to first arrived ahead of the runner. The Giants won behind Hubbell, 4-2 and moved into first place in the National League pennant race. They dropped back to second today when the Cubs won at Boston while the Giants were idle because of rain.

CUBS RETURN TO FIRST PLACE AS CARLETON BEATS BEES, 5-1

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, July 15.—The Chicago Cubs returned to hitting form today and downed the Boston Bees 5 to 1 to again assume their position as leaders of the National League. The Cubs collected 14 hits, 13 off Guy Bush, former Cub hurler.

Tex Carleton limited the Bees to one hit.

The Cubs, under the leadership of Acting Manager Gabby Hartnett, took the lead with a run in the second inning. They added two more in the third and quit their run-making after getting two markers in the sixth.

Frank Demaree was the hitting star for the Cubs. He collected three hits, one of which counted two runs.

The New York Giants were idle because of rain and slipped back to second place.

Nate Lewis, Here With Fighters for Auditorium Show, Not Sure Louis Can "Take It"

By W. J. McGoogan.

Still chasing the rainbow of hoping one day to manage a boxing champion, Nate Lewis, veteran of the boxing game is here today with his two latest hopes, Harry Thomas, a heavyweight and Leo Rodak, a featherweight. Harry Thomas is to box Billy Jones, Philadelphia Negro or Larry Atkins card at the Auditorium tomorrow night while Rodak tackles Young Simington of Poplar Bluff, Mo.

Lewis has been in the game since 1899, and has been promoter, matchmaker and manager of boxers. Among the famous boxers he has handled were Charley White, Paul Moore and George "Kayo" Brown. None of them ever won title, although White was mighty near to it, having boxed lightweight titleholders 12 times and featherweight champion twice. In each case where a crown was at stake he lost, while when he won from champions it was in a match where the title was not at stake except through a knockout.

Stadium Matchmaker.

He was matchmaker for the Chicago Stadium for a number of years and handled the largest indoor crowd ever to see a match when he promoted the King Levinsky-Jack Dempsey exhibition there some years ago, when 23,262 persons attended. He also handled the Tommy Loughran-Mickey Walker match there which drew more than $186,000, the largest receipts for an indoor crowd.

Right now he thinks he has the best punching heavyweight in the business in Harry Thomas. Not a great boxer but a fine puncher, who can meet any heavyweight in the game and have a chance to win.

"And one punch can change the

PARKER AND GRANT IN BITTER BATTLE FOR DAVIS CUP BERTH

NO DEFINITE DECISION IS LIKELY UNTIL TIME FOR DRAW

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, July 15.—The problem of choosing between Bryan Grant of Atlanta or Frankie Parker of Milwaukee to play the second singles match for America against Germany in the interzone Davis Cup finals starting Saturday, is putting wrinkles in Capt. Walter Pate's usually placid brow.

After watching the American team practice nearly two hours under a scorching sun yesterday, he admitted he hadn't been able to make up his mind.

"I might not decide until just before the draw at noon tomorrow," he said.

There is, of course no question that Don Budge, red-headed ace of the Americans, will play singles matches and pair with Gene Mako in the doubles.

It's Tough to Decide.

Likewise there is no doubt that Donald Gottfried von Cramm and Heinrich Henkel, who practiced on an adjoining court, will carry the entire burden for Germany.

Parker and Grant have set a poser for Pate. The way they looked he might wind up by himself. Grant, broken by a deep tan and showing no trace of the ankle injury that handicapped him during the later stages of the Wimbledon championships, looked like his old giant-killing self in two sets against Budge.

Budge won the first, 6-2, but the big red-head is so terrific at times now that's likely to happen to any player he faces. What must have impressed Pate most was the way little Bitsy set his jaw and came back to win the second, 6-3, against Budge's whole fiery repertoire.

Parker then stepped on the court and gave Mako a fancy trimming, 6-1.

Play in Special Match.

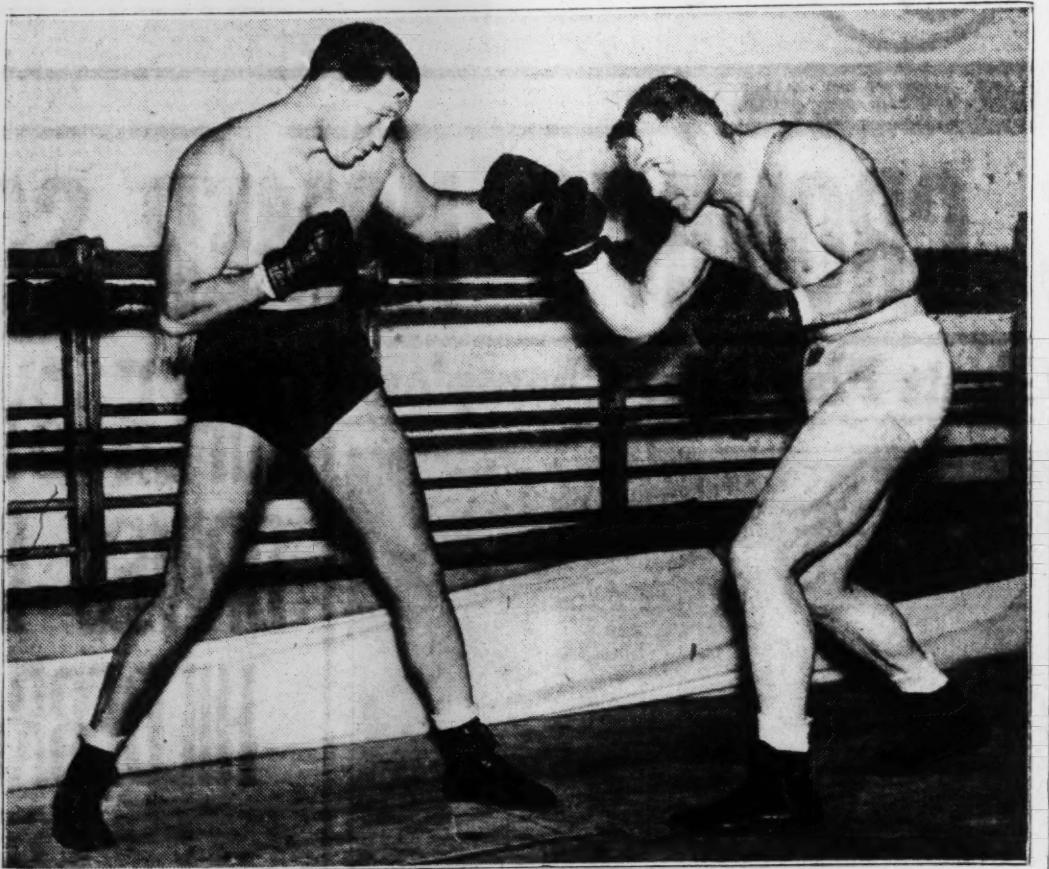

"Now you two play for 15 minutes," Pate instructed Grant and Parker. "They did—and if either can play against Germany like they played that 15-minute special match there need be no fears about the destination of the Davis Cup."

Parker held a 4-3 advantage, with Grant rearing to serve again when Pate, with his eye on the clock, called a halt. He looked even more perplexed than when they started. Both boys have reached the top of their game and it doesn't look like there is more than a point between them in a set.

Coach Hans Nusslein is putting the German team through hard practice daily, but the Americans are getting along without a coach.

"Can you imagine anybody coaching Budge?" Pate asked after Don had hit a cross-court back-hander

TO REPRESENT
CITY IN MUNY
GOLF SELECTED

Heat and the 18-hole course at Forest Park combined to keep the scores high yesterday as four players qualified for the right to represent St. Louis in the National Public Parks golf tournament to be held in San Francisco, Aug. 9-14. Gates, golfing policeman, again paced the field with scores of 76-75-151. Frank Moloney, 152, Jim Spencer, 153, and Bill Bentley, 156, were the other qualifiers. Par for the course is 72.

Nine started the qualifying round, but Dr. I. R. Davis, after finishing the first 18 with 77, only a stroke behind Gates, dropped out after five holes of the second round because of the heat. Tom Carlos also withdrew because of the heat after a first round of 86.

Gerald Griffin was disqualified because he failed to hole out a short putt on No. 13.

Gates, Spencer, Walter Ambo and Gene Shillito qualified last year and played in the event at New York. Gates qualified for the match play and won his first match, but was eliminated in the second round.

The national tournament is a difficult one to win, with some 180 of the best park golfers in the country entered. There is a 36-hole qualifying round with 32 qualifying or match play in the championship class.

Yesterday's scores:

1. Gates	76-75-151
2. Frank Moloney	77-75-152
3. Jim Spencer	78-75-153
4. Bill Bentley	78-77-155

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH DEAD MAN, INJURED WOMAN, IN LOCOMOTIVE WATER TANK

Engineer Finds Her Holding Companion Up When Train Stops at Staunton, Va.

By the Associated Press.
STAUNTON, Va., July 15.—A dead man and an injured woman were pulled from the water tank of a Chesapeake & Ohio locomotive today when the train stopped here to take on passengers and water. The engineer who discovered them said apparently the two had been riding on the water tender and struck a tunnel or an overhead bridge.

The man, identified as Reginald Hawes, 25 years old, of Covington, apparently had been brushed into the tank opening and the woman, Mrs. Mamie Montgomery, 25, had clambered through the 18-inch aperture to keep him above water.
She was holding his head when the engineer discovered the pair.

Mrs. Montgomery said she was estranged from her husband and lived in Roanoke with her mother.

George W. Jerrold, business agent of Cement Finishers' Union No. 527, was elected president of the Building and Grand and Washington boulevards, and the Carleton Building, Sixth and Olive streets, had signed agreements with the new Building Service Employees' Union, a Committee for Industrial Organization affiliate, was made today by the union.

Jerrold, who resides at 5600A Greer avenue, has represented the cement finishers for the last four years. His union has about 200 members.

John J. Church, secretary of the council since May, 1933, was re-elected.

Rules of the council were changed, making terms of all officers three years instead of one.

Other officers chosen were: Vice-president, John E. Craven, business agent for the ironworkers; treasurer, Timothy Callahan, lathers, re-elected; sergeant-at-arms, Joe Culli-gan, business agent for the marble setters' helpers, re-elected. Members of the board of trustees, James Harlan, business agent for the asbestos workers; Earl Jenkins, business agent for the building and construction workers and Thomas J.
Sharreran, business agent of the Painters' District Council.

Quinn, who formed an independent union proposal affiliation with the American Federation of Labor, and hence it could not sign union agreements.

The union called a strike at noontime yesterday at the 12-story Ful-leron Building, Seventh and Pine streets, temporarily crippling elevator service. The management, saying a majority of employees had signed a statement that they did not want the CIO to represent them, declined to negotiate a contract. Today, the management reported all three elevators operating and other services as usual.
The union had a small picket line at the entrances of the building on both streets and the alley.

The union announced that representatives of four other unions with offices in the Fulleron Building had threatened to move unless a contract was made. These groups were the cap and millinery workers, bookbinders, cooks and optical workers. The latter, a CIO unit, has closed its office temporarily.

EDEN FINDS PARIS
COOL TO HIS NEW PLANS FOR SPAIN

Labor Party in Britain Also Objects to Giving Rebels Limited Rights as Beligerents.

ROME AND BERLIN
ARE MORE CORDIAL

But Fascists Have Yet to Decide on Clause Calling Foreigners From Battle-fields.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 15.—The British scheme to pacify conflicting international interests in the Spanish civil war and keep the conflict from spreading in Europe appeared arranged today on French opposition that threatened a break in the traditional Paris-London partnership.

Looking askance at Anthony Eden's proposal to grant "limited" beligerent rights to both loyalists and insurgents in Spain, a source close to the Foreign Office in Paris said:

"The question is always the same: In what measure is Britain's policy to allow Germany and Italy to take advantage of the Spanish situation to crush France and cut off her Mediterranean communications?"

First reactions from Berlin and Rome indicated the plan would receive at least friendly consideration from the two Fascist powers that have recognized Spanish insurgency as the true government of Spain, but general objection of both France and Soviet Russia was feared here.

Italian-German approval may collapse, however, on the British provision that the granting of beligerent rights follow a start on the removal of foreign volunteers from Spain.

Labor Party Seeks Debate. British diplomats awaited full crystallization of opinion among the other nations of the 27-Power "hands-off-Spain" committee while opposition fomented even within Britain.

Labor Leader Clement R. Attlee charged Eden with having "surrendered to Fascist powers" in opening foreign affairs debate in Commons on the compromise plan. He accused Italy and Germany of uttering proposals which are crude and obvious attempts to weigh the scales against the Spanish Government."

Eden Replies to Charge.

Eden replied that "the government of Europe know that, if non-intervention breaks down, the risks of European conflict thereby are inevitably increased. It may be we shall be unable to avoid reaching that point, but every nation in Europe is reluctant to approach that abyss."

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, seeking to patch up Spanish neutrality before it is discarded entirely, proposed:

"Limited" beligerent rights contingent upon steps toward withdrawal of foreign volunteers from Spain's battlefields:

Termination of the Foreign Naval Patrol already weakened by the withdrawal of Italy and Germany last month:

Proposals Seen as Ambiguous.

While the Government hoped the non-intervention committee would be able at a session tomorrow to give some indication of their government's views, it was not expected that meeting would bring final action on the plan.

Although Britain was most eager for a speedy decision on the scheme, it was admitted modifications were to be considered.

Interest Powers were thought likely a seek to improve the clauses most affecting them. A source close to the Paris Foreign Office termed the British proposals "ambiguous" and said they were not sufficiently specific as to become teachers in German high schools.

Jewish children of elementary school age will be admitted to Aryans schools only if there is no Jewish school in the town concerned. He advocated the establishment of Jewish elementary schools or Jewish classes wherever possible.

The attendance of Jewish pupils in German schools will be limited strictly to lectures. They will be excluded from vacations in camps and from sporting events.

The new British plan to keep foreign arms and men out of the Spanish civil war "shows an effort" to consider the German viewpoint. They declared the proposal was "quite suitable as a basis for further discussion."

BERLIN, July 15.—German Government spokesmen said today that

Part Played by Catholic Church in Spanish Life; What Has Happened To It in the Loyalist Sections

Priests Killed or Driven Into Hiding—Buildings Left as Empty Shells, Interiors Destroyed.

From a Special Correspondent of the Manchester Guardian.

VALENCIA (June) The attack on religion has been more radical in loyalist Spain than anywhere else in the world, including Mexico and Russia. All Roman Catholic churches have been closed and nearly all have been completely destroyed inside, only the walls, roof and tower remaining. Nor have the Protestant churches escaped, with the exception of the small German church in Madrid. In that little church services still go on, thanks to the fantastic courage and devotion of the pastor, Dr. Friedner, and his popularity among the poor of Madrid. The English church in Barcelona has been closed. The two Non-conformist places of worship at Clot and Pueblo Nueva have been burnt.

Non-Roman forms of the Christian faith were always discouraged in Spain under the monarchy and remained inconspicuous. The overwhelming majority of the people were Roman Catholic, and it is the fate of the Roman Catholic churches that reveals the depth and power of the anti-religious reaction that has triumphed in loyalist territory. The Cathedral at Barcelona is uninjured; so is the "Abey" Church at Montserrat (no damage has been done to its twelfth century "Black Virgin"). Visitors to Madrid are shown "an ambient church" as a piece of propaganda and some families in Madrid have had permission to hold private mass. But these are the loneiest exceptions.

Village Churches Burned. In village after village the church is an empty shell, and only because it is so massively built of stone has it survived even as a shell. Inside it has either been completely burned out after being soaked in gasoline, or the altar, the images, the pulpit, and the pews have been smashed or hacked to pieces. Religious symbols in countless villages have been destroyed; wayside shrines and crucifixes have been smashed. The wells or fountains in some villages used to be backed by a stone slab with an image of the Virgin or of a saint; these also have been defaced. The lovely churches of Valencia have all been burned out or destroyed inside, and now are used as garages, repair shops, depots, and so on.

It seems that most of the nuns and priests were able to escape. But that many were hunted down and murdered is beyond doubt.

There is no "anti-God" movement in loyalist Spain as in Russia, and not very much anti-religious propaganda. Nevertheless, no priest dare identify himself in any town or village. Not even at funerals is there, among the abundance of wreaths showing political colors or made in the shape of the Soviet star or of the initials of the political parties or of the syndicates, a single wreath in the shape of the Cross—not because it is forbidden, but simply because no one would dare be associated with such a symbol. In Russia the churches are full and religion is a power still. In Russia persecution has a meaning. In loyalist Spain there is nothing left to weigh the scales against the Spanish Government."

Eden Replies to Charge. Eden replied that "the government of Europe know that, if non-intervention breaks down, the risks of European conflict thereby are inevitably increased. It may be we shall be unable to avoid reaching that point, but every nation in Europe is reluctant to approach that abyss."

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, seeking to patch up Spanish neutrality before it is discarded entirely, proposed:

"Limited" beligerent rights contingent upon steps toward withdrawal of foreign volunteers from Spain's battlefields:

Termination of the Foreign Naval Patrol already weakened by the withdrawal of Italy and Germany last month:

Proposals Seen as Ambiguous.

While the Government hoped the non-intervention committee would be able at a session tomorrow to give some indication of their government's views, it was not expected that meeting would bring final action on the plan.

Although Britain was most eager for a speedy decision on the scheme, it was admitted modifications were to be considered.

Interest Powers were thought likely a seek to improve the clauses most affecting them. A source close to the Paris Foreign Office termed the British proposals "ambiguous" and said they were not sufficiently specific as to become teachers in German high schools.

Jewish children of elementary school age will be admitted to Aryans schools only if there is no Jewish school in the town concerned. He advocated the establishment of Jewish elementary schools or Jewish classes wherever possible.

The attendance of Jewish pupils in German schools will be limited strictly to lectures. They will be excluded from vacations in camps and from sporting events.

The new British plan to keep foreign arms and men out of the Spanish civil war "shows an effort" to consider the German viewpoint. They declared the proposal was "quite suitable as a basis for further discussion."

BERLIN, July 15.—The ratio of Jewish boys and girls must not exceed 1 1/4 per cent of the total number of new pupils accepted in any German high school, Bernhard Rust, Minister of Education, declared yesterday.

Students of 50 per cent Jewish blood will be granted the same rights as Aryans, Rust said. The non-Aryans may attend Jewish classes if they choose, but will not be eligible for first-class citizenship. Jewish and non-Aryans cannot become teachers in German high schools.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption; always fight the enemies of all parties, never long to pay party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

Podunk—Flat River—St. Louis.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
In your letter column of July 10, Ottie Lutz is all hot under the collar because the St. Louis racketeers nicked him for a two-bit chance on an auto and trailer and he drew a blank. According to Mr. Lutz, the winner always lives in Podunk or Flat River. I know good and well nobody of us 27 people living in Podunk won that outfit, 'cause there would have been a celebration over getting something for nothing from St. Louis. No use us trying to defend Podunk about this wise crack 'cause we have been potted at so many times we are kinda used to it. But why all the time do some silly folks in St. Louis try to make fun of Flat River? Your rackets are the brain children of the ultra-smart guys of St. Louis—hope you keep them there.

Having been both to Flat River and St. Louis, I would like to defend Flat River, as I think it is much better of the two places. Of course, I admit St. Louis has more built in people along with racketeers, stuffed ballot boxes, election fraud, panhandlers, bookmakers (whatever they are), a free bridge that charges a dime, bomb-throwers, 10-cent drinks for poor kids in city parks, telephone solicitors, inc., numbers racket, weather tickets, fake wrestling matches, etc., which they don't have in Flat River. But the people down there just naturally can see and think better and clearer, 'cause their heads are not always clogged with soot, smoke and pall like you folks in St. Louis.

Another thing, if I spend any money in Flat River, I think I get my money's worth and don't have to be skeptical, 'cause you just feel more like you are dealing with folks that appreciate your business and expect to see you again. I'll bet that any town as big as St. Louis needs the business support of many such towns like Flat River, and more would suggest you don't do enough with creating about the better but smaller towns.

The small towns can get along without St. Louis, but St. Louis can't get along without them. St. Louis don't use all the goods your factories make when they are not on strike. I suggest you don't wisecrack at Flat River any more, 'cause you got plenty to wisecrack about where you live. You mind your business and we will mind ours.

At the Bar of Common Sense.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
THE Scobey case is now at the bar of the common sense of humanity, which is outraged at the previous trials and verdicts, and at the years in jail which the young men are spending.

For this, no redress is possible either to them or their families and friends.

The ill fame of the white citizens of Alabama and the United States will not be lessened even if any or all are adjudged not guilty of violence, given light sentences or acquitted.

We have to prove to the world that any white boy or man accused by any colored girl or woman will be subject to the same trial, punishment and publicity as colored accused by white.

The social insult to the manhood and womanhood of millions of our colored citizens, their economic and educational polarization by racial discrimination, and advertised lynchings by "unknown" whites constitute a vital menace to the peaceful evolution of American democracy.

I am a non-partisan, white Anglo-Saxon American.

Says Cotton Is Still King.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
REMARKING to your editorial about Cotton exports: According to United States foreign trade figures, our total exports of all products in 1936 were 46.47 per cent of 1929, and our exports of cotton in 1936 were 47 per cent of 1929. These figures are in dollars. In bales, our 1936 cotton exports were 73 per cent of 1929.

In Dun-Bradstreet's Review of July—the national standards of living comparison or indexes—the United States leads with a rank or score of 166, the British Isles are next with 135, Germany is 110, France 107, Italy 49 and Portugal 28. The standard of living figures for the cotton-producing nations—Mexico, Brazil, India, China and Egypt—are not included, but these countries would not likely exceed Italy.

Cotton is an important item in producing cotton, and the labor is hard and back-breaking.

What sacred cow is this export cotton market that we are supposed to be losing? The foreign trade will extend itself where it is profitable, and foreign trade that is not profitable should not be extended.

Last year we exported about 44 per cent of our cotton crop and, since 1867, we have averaged exporting 47 per cent of our cotton crop. United States cotton is still the big money crop, and producing premium cotton is more important than an extra million bales.

Cotton is still king.

MR. SUMMERS' SPEECH.

A terrific blow at the President's court-packing scheme was landed by Chairman Hatton Sumners of the House Judiciary Committee, in one of his rare speeches on the House floor, when he clearly intimated that the bill would never be reported out of his committee and called upon the President to abandon it, so that Congress might address itself to the passage of other legislation.

JOSEPH T. ROBINSON.

The words that have come from his colleagues on the death of Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader of the Senate, are more than formal expressions of regret. Genuine respect for his great ability as a party leader is in them, and warm affection for "Joe" Robinson the man. The Senate, as statements from both sides of the chamber have made clear, would have welcomed, almost to a man, the opportunity to attest its regard by voting to make Senator Robinson a member of the Supreme Court in succession to Justice Van Devanter.

Party loyalty was the guiding star in the progress of Mr. Robinson from the House of Representatives of his native State of Arkansas into the national Senate and the party leadership that was recognized by his nomination for Vice-President in 1928. Party loyalty was of the very essence of the man, and when that is understood, one understands the almost unbroken support that he gave, as party leader in the Senate, to the policies of the New Deal. They were not always policies, it must be believed, that he would have chosen, but as a party man he accepted them and fought for them in a way that placed the Roosevelt administration heavily in his debt. It is the general belief in Washington that his services were to have been rewarded by the court appointment.

But Robinson could not have got where he did merely as a party wheel-horse. He had a rugged and resolute character that expressed itself in his early struggle for an education: one of 10 children of a country preacher, he paid his own way through the University of Arkansas and later through a law course at the University of Virginia. He fought his forces battles without giving or expecting quarter. In them he was aided by a commanding presence and an orator's resonant voice—qualities which, combined with his party regularity, his parliamentary skill and his quickness in debate, gained him often the distinction of presiding at national party gatherings. He had gifts which led Woodrow Wilson to call him in 1922 "the real moral and intellectual leader of the Democrats in the Senate." In 1930, by appointment of President Hoover, he served his country ably as a delegate to the naval arms conference at London, where he won the abiding esteem of such an excellent judge of men as the late Dwight Morrow, one of his fellow-delegates.

A paradox, in a sense, was "Joe" Robinson, imbued with convictions that often must have caused him to chafe under the methods of the New Deal, yet a redoubtable fighter for New Deal measures. A paradox, also, though explainable in terms of his philosophy of party and personal loyalty. In any case, a man who inspired in his associates affection and loyalty, matching the loyalty that he gave, and a first-class fighting man.

IS THIS PODUNK?

As we understand it, Mr. Healy is chairman of the Municipal Art Commission, whose function it is to pass on the artistic suitability of such public monuments as the fountain which the celebrated sculptor, Carl Milles, is preparing for Alois Plaza. Mr. Healy, however, has broadened the scope of his authority to become the protector of the community's morals. Basing his judgment on some photographs in Life, published some months ago and criticised by Mr. Miles as giving a distorted impression of his work, Mr. Healy proposes either that Mr. Milles be persuaded to make some changes in the figures or that the city scrap them when the work is done.

Is this a civilized community or is it Podunk? Is it the work of an eminent sculptor to be passed upon before it is completed, before any sound judgment can be formed? Is it then to be scanned from the viewpoint of narrow prudishness, without regard to artistic merit? We trust Mr. Healy will compose himself. The morals of this city have withstood a good many attacks and there is fair reason to believe that they will not be undermined by the undraped figures of gods and goddesses in a work of art.

BOOSTING HARLAN COUNTY.

A "booster edition" in which a publicity organ publishes glowing tributes to a community along with plenty of advertising paid for by the individuals and organizations boosted, is a relatively common undertaking. But never before has anyone had the hardihood to tackle the job of boosting such a community as Harlan County, Ky., as the National Young Democrat, "organ of the Young Democratic Clubs of America—3000 clubs, 4,000,000 members," has just done.

In order to boost Harlan County, it was first necessary to do a thorough job of whitewashing, in view of the exposures of coal operators' unsavory tactics lately made by the Senate Civil Liberties Committee. And in order to make the whitewash show up, the editor felt he had to blacken Senator La Follette, his committee, members of the Roosevelt administration, John L. Lewis and union labor, and to paint a horrendous picture of a plot to dismember the Democratic party. No wonder that, when all this fantastic matter got around to its readers and its subjects, the fat was in the fire! The editor is about to lose, or has lost, his job, and sweeping changes in the journal's management are on the first five years.

It is estimated that the measure will permit farm purchase loans to 3000 tenants in 1938, 7500 in 1939 and 15,000 in 1940, from appropriations for these years of $10,000,000, $25,000,000 and $50,000,000, respectively. Over the same three-year period, the Government will spend $50,000,000 to purchase and retire unproductive land.

Since there are an estimated 2,800,000 tenant farmers in the country, the provision for land acquisition loans to a total of 25,500 persons is a small attack on the tenancy problem. Yet Congress was wise in considering the billion-dollar appropriation set up in the original Bankhead-Jones bill as too great a drain on the Treasury in the present state of the national finances. Moreover, we are yet to learn whether the people who are to be the beneficiaries have the qualities requisite to making their own way on necessarily small farm units in an age when the trend is toward larger, more efficient, mechanized farms. The tenancy bill will permit the making of a useful laboratory experiment for the guidance of Congress in a peculiarly difficult field.

A MAGNIFICENT FLIGHT.

Across the top of the world from Moscow to San Jacinto, Cal., through blinding snowstorms and dense fog, over some of the world's most desolate and isolated regions, to set a new distance record of 6700 miles in 62 hours of non-stop flying—the three Russian aviators have completed a flight that surpasses in drama and achievement even that of their compatriots over a similar course last month.

There were several reasons for sending another plane over the trans-polar route so soon after the previous flight: to gather more scientific knowledge, to confirm the feasibility of the course, to prove that the earlier exploit was not merely a lucky performance, to demonstrate anew the quality of Soviet aircraft and personnel, to break the distance record.

The value of the data gathered remains to be determined, and the immediate practicality of the polar link between the two hemispheres is a matter for experts to settle finally, but the other objectives were magnificently attained. This performance gains in substance, as befitting the rapid progress of aviation, when viewed against the background of its trail-blazing predecessor.

PETE FRENCH BRINGS
25 HUMMERS FOR ZOO

Back From Annual Excursion to South America With Birds and Bushmaster.

Pete French, the insurance salesman who escapes from his job scene every year to chaperone some children into the South American jungle country and to bring back specimens for the St. Louis Zoo, returned from his annual tour yesterday with the largest shipment of humming birds ever to reach here alive.

French arrived by plane at Lambert-St. Louis Field in the afternoon after having landed in the morning at New Orleans. He carried the large crate of humming birds in the regular passenger compartment of the plane, while bringing back a large variety of other tropical birds and a bushmaster snake in the baggage compartment.

Henry M. Kennon, the zoo's ornithologist, was at the field. He rushed the hummers to the zoo. It was impossible to count the birds because they flew back and forth in the cage with restless activity, but Kennon said there were at least 25.

The shipment once more calls attention to the zoo's already famous collection of hummers. There now are 15 in the large cage in the bird house and the addition of the 25 will make it the most plentiful and varied group ever displayed here. Kennon said there were three or four different species among the new arrivals. Only one died on the plane trip from New Orleans, but several others died during the boat trip. They were bought in Venezuela three weeks ago.

Three Calliope Tanagers.

Of the other birds which French brought back the zoo will take only three calliope tanagers.

The bushmaster was readily accepted, however, and was immediately placed in a special cage which was roped off from the general view so that onlookers wouldn't frightened it. The bushmaster, not only one of the new world's most venomous snakes, it is also one of the most excitable and sensitive. It received very careful attention. The only other bushmaster which the zoo ever owned died nine weeks after arrival. R. Martin Walker, the zoo's herpetologist, said the present specimen looked to be in fine condition. He will begin to fit it tomorrow in the hope of getting it slowly acclimated.

French also brought back 10 other snakes, mostly boas and rat snakes, six monkeys, eight lizards and a sloth. These were sent up by train. The Zoo pays French at the regular market prices for the specimens it takes from him.

This was the fourth such South American trip for French, who lives at 1350 West Lockwood avenue, Webster Groves. It was the first time that his wife went along. The children whom they chaperoned were: Dorothy Manewal, 12 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Manewal, 4922 Wabasha avenue; William Dazey, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Dazey, 75 Lake Forest, Clayton; Stuart Butler Jr., 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart M. Butler, 6369 Wydown boulevard, Clayton, and Kim Vardaman, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Vardaman Jr., 4550 Westminster place.

The party left five weeks ago from New Orleans. The boat stopped at Port au Prince, Haiti; the Dominican Republic, the Island of Curaçao, Venezuela, Paraguaná, Dutch Guiana, then went 110 miles up the Cominchiwne River to a bauxite mine.

Aunt Visits Duchess of Windsor.

By the Associated Press.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 15.—Mrs. S. D. Buchan, Merriman of Washington, D. C., arrived yesterday to visit the Duke and Duchess of Windsor at their honeymoon Castle Wasserlebenberg. The Duke and Duchess interrupted a tennis game to go to the station to greet the Duchess' "Aunt Bessie."

At the same time, it may be noted that the Duchess is fortunate in having all the support of her case made public. Others have been well served in the Government's care. Among the names mentioned in investigation, more as tax-evaders than the ordinary case of tax-evaders she was arranging to give money to the Government, while the ordinary tax-evader is arranging to keep it in his pocket, instead of giving it to him.

DR. CLEMENS O. KLEBER DIES

Producer of Essential Oils and Writer on Chemistry.

By the Associated Press.

CLIFTON, N. J., July 15.—Dr. Clemens Oscar Kleber, 74 years old, internationally known in the essential oil and aromatic fields of chemistry, died last night after three weeks' illness. He owned the Clifton Chemical Laboratories, one of the largest American producers of essential oils, which he founded in 1906.

Kleber was born in Germany, was educated there, and came to the United States in 1893. He wrote several treatises on analytical methods used in producing peppermint and bay oils, lectured and contributed to technical magazines. He was a member of the Federal board which edits and revises the U. S. Pharmacopoeia every 10 years.

THE NEW MOVIES IN ST. LOUIS FOR THIS WEEK

'ROAD BACK' AT FOX THEATER TOMORROW

Film From Remarque Novel on Double Bill—Loew's Features Powell, Rainer.

E RICH MARIA REMARQUE'S novel, "The Road Back," published in 1931 as a sequel to "All Quiet on the Western Front," comes to the screen at the Fox tomorrow, on a double bill with the comedy, "Love in a Bungalow."

"The Road Back" considers the aftermath of the World War as it affected a group of German boy soldiers of the town of Klosterberg, Bavaria. John King is seen as Ernst, Richard Cromwell as Ludwig, Slim Summerville as Tad, Henry Hunter as Bethke and Maurice Murphy as Albert. Although a romantic theme runs through the film, its dramatic climax is derived from a murder and murder trial. Albert kills the man who has stolen his sweetheart, Lucy, played by Barbara Read, and a defense is made for him by his friends that the war taught him to kill.

Among others in the cast are Etienne Girardot, Lionel Atwill, Noah Beery Jr., Louise Fazenda, Spring Byington, Laura Hope Crews and Jean Rouverol, young actress who is a native of St. Louis. Miss Rouverol, who began her dramatic career in a play written by her mother, has appeared in "Mississippi," "Private Worlds" and "It's a Gift." She has a romantic role opposite John King in "The Road Back."

The screen play of "The Road Back" was written by R. C. Sherriff, author of the successful war play and film, "Journey's End," and Charles Kenyon, writer of many previous scenarios. The director was James Whale, an ex-Lieutenant of the English Army in the World War. The entire film was made at the studio, battle-fields and town of Klosterberg being reproduced for the major settings.

"Love in a Bungalow," the Fox comedy, features Nan Grey and Kent Taylor. Like John King and Barbara Read of the cast of "The Road Back," Miss Grey is one of a group of unknowns featured in the musical hit, "Three Smart Girls," with Deanna Durbin. In "Love in a Bungalow," Miss Grey takes the role of a hostess in a display cottage. One morning she finds a jobless salesman, Taylor, sleeping in the house and asks him to leave, but after she has heard his story, permits him to stay. Most of the comedy arises out of a prank in which the two submit a letter in a prize contest, offering themselves as the happiest married couple in the country.

In the Fox lobby this week is a display of 23 reproductions of works by Vincent Van Gogh, famous Dutch painter. The exhibition, lent by the Museum of Modern Art in New York City, will remain until Aug. 2.

Loew's—"The Emperor's Candlesticks."

WILLIAM POWELL and Louise Rainer, who were teamed together in "Escapade," and "The Great Ziegfeld" are co-starred in the spy melodrama, "The Emperor's Candlesticks," opening at Loew's tomorrow. The picture, from the novel by the Baroness Orczy, published originally in 1899, deals with a Polish conspiracy in the days of Czar Russia.

The Russian Grand Duke Peter, played by Robert Young, is taken captive in Vienna by a group of Polish Nationalists, who threaten to kill him unless the Czar, his father, releases a Polish patriot. In order, however, that the Czar will be sure to receive a message telling of their threat, they entrust it to a fellow Pole, Baron Stephan Wolensky, played by William Powell.

At about the same time, Powell's connection with the conspirators is discovered by the Russian secret service and documents proving his guilt are started to Russia in the hands of an agent, Countess Olga Mironova, represented by Miss Rainer. A Prince Johann (Henry Stephenson) also is sending two candlesticks to Russia as a gift to Russian Princess. He knows both Powell and Miss Rainer and shows them both the candlesticks. Seeking a hiding place for documents, each hides his papers in a secret compartment of a candlestick.

The candlesticks are stolen from a train and each must pursue them across Europe. A resultant romance complicates the situation and eventually puts both Powell and Miss Rainer in the hands of the Russian secret police, in danger of death.

Supporting players of "The Emperor's Candlesticks" include Maureen O'Sullivan, Fran Morgan, Douglas Dumbrille, E. E. Clive and Barnett Parker. Loew's short subject program will feature a new Disney cartoon, "The Worm Turns."

The Ambassador, now playing the Dick Powell musical, "The Singing Marine" and "Michael O'Halloran," has not announced whether it will retain its present bill or offer a new one. "Ever Since Eve" comedy starring Marion Davies and Robert Montgomery, has been booked as a coming attraction at the theater.

CAMERAMAN CHASES RAINBOW, AND CAPTURES IT IN COLOR

Robert C. Bruce Returns to Studio After Successful Hunt Amid Utah Rainfall.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 15—

This town, which has tried almost everything else, is now chasing a rainbow.

Robert C. Bruce, expert in outdoor color photography, recently was assigned by Director James

Hagan to go out and capture a real rainbow on color film. Hagan wanted the effect for a scene shot in his "Ebb Tide," now before the cameras.

If Bruce quailed at the amazing assignment, he didn't show it. In a lifetime of photography he'd caught everything else—why not a rainbow?

This week Bruce came back to the studio, grinning triumphantly.

He'd photographed a rainbow.

He had to go clear into Utah after checking weather maps, to get it, but he succeeded. With his camera equipment set up solidly in a fast truck, Bruce followed a rainstorm across Utah for nearly half a day. The filming required six separate set-ups, the truck halting for a shot and then speeding on in the wake of the storm for another and another until Bruce finally got what he wanted.

It was the first time a rainbow had ever been recorded for the screen. The footage will be used for one of the South Sea Island storm sequences in "Ebb Tide," based on Robert Louis Stevenson's story of the same title.

STOKOWSKI'S SHOES SQUEAK

Famous Conductor Spoils Rendition of Bach Toccata.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 15—

Bach's "Toccata in D Minor" and a pair of new shoes do not mix. For a half hour sound technicians, property men, grips and assistant directors tried to trace a squeaking noise which intruded into sensitive microphones as Leopold Stokowski played the Bach masterpiece on the piano.

The trouble was finally located in Stokowski's shoes, a new pair, which squeaked when he pressed on the piano's pedals. They were squeak-proofed by soaking them in a pan of water.

Large Sweet Corn Crop Indicated This Year

Available From Mid-July Until Fall; It Will Be at Peak Around August First.

Sweet corn, bushel baskets of it, fresh from the field, is now beginning to be seen in our markets. It is rapidly displacing its humbler predecessor, green field corn, usually called "roasting ears."

The average American, so thoroughly enjoys corn-on-the-cob that when summer comes he'll attack the first of the crop with gusto—and a not too critical taste.

And that's just as well, for June's fresh corn is nothing more or less than early field corn, grown for roasting ears. So is that sold the first part of July, for that matter. Farmers in the Southern states, as a matter of fact, plant no true sweet corn for the Northern market, a fact which accounts for the 30-day lag between the first roasting ears and the first local sweet corn on American tables in the northern part of the country.

Early Corn Not Sweet.

There's no deception about the business, as this earlier corn is frankly labeled "roasting ears" or "green corn." The big roasting ear shippers in descending order of their importance last summer were Alabama, Texas and Florida. North Carolina, however, was the biggest July shipper. True sweet corn can hardly be said to enter at all in the commercial shipping picture.

From mid-July until fall the real sweet corn is available. By the first of August it will be at its height, and around mid-August it will likely be at its cheapest. Almost every state east of the Rockies habitually grows a generous local supply.

This summer's sweet corn promises well. Though the United States Department of Agriculture economists gather no figures on this crop, they are quite ready to say: "Conditions have been favorable for corn in general—naturally they are favorable for sweet corn."

Even though roasting ear production is on the wane and sweet corn is waxing, it may be worth while to summarize differences and similarities between the two.

Both sweet corn and roasting ears should be juicy and tender, with bright, plump, milky kernels just firm enough to offer slight resistance to pressure. But sweet corn should have an added sweetness.

If either type corn is too immature the kernels will be very small, soft, and flavorless. If it is too mature, the change from milky content to a doughy texture has begun, and the kernels are tough. The range of time during which the corn is of excellent quality is somewhat longer with sweet corn than with field corn.

Color is no sure guide to corn type. There are yellow and white varieties among both, though the field corn sold for cooking is usually white. In some varieties the husks indicate corn type. Field corn husks are usually smooth. Sweet corn husks often end in small blades which hang free in ribbon-like ends.

In many sections of the country there is a preference for big ears. This is a preference for big ears, but big ears are not characteristic of sweet corn, which runs usually from 7 to 9 inches in length and smaller in diameter than does field corn. An 8-inch ear is a good long one for golden bantam, for instance. Country gentleman is one of the few sweet corn varieties in which large size has been developed.

Both in field corn and in sweet corn the slenderness of the ear tells nothing as to the kernel. The slender ear may carry just as much kernel as a large coarse ear.

Ear worm is a pest to both types of corn. Worm injury is not serious from the viewpoint of the buyer, when it is confined to the types, for there the damaged parts can be cut out with little waste. When the injured parts occur along the side of the ear they are more objectionable.

Food Content.

Dietetically, sweet corn's claim to a place on American tables is based chiefly upon its carbohydrate-phosphorus content. Very young green corn is about 15 per cent carbohydrate—which places it in the same class as grape and apples. But corn's carbohydrate content increases rapidly as it matures, so that kernels of medium maturity come in the 20 to 25 per cent carbohydrate list of fruits and vegetables.

Green sweet corn is rich in phosphorus and carries some vitamin C, about half that of tomatoes, weight for weight.

As to preparing sweet corn, your 100 per cent American will invariably call to rip on the cob. And Dame Fashion has it out, though somewhat reluctantly, confessing a measure of gentility upon the "dish." Silver skewers can now be bought to thrust into the ends of the cob and thus save fingers from buttery contamination.

Whether or not it is to be served thus, it is most flavorful and tender, so cooked. Simmer the corn in salted water with a little sugar. Don't boil it rapidly, don't use a large quantity of water, and don't overcook.

When the corn is done, if you will cut the kernels from the cob, add seasoning—and if you like, some cream. If you are serving it on the cob, it will look more attractive and stay hot longer if you place it on the table covered with a napkin, as you would with field corn.

As most housewives know, the time lapse between picking and cooking is one of the most important factors affecting palatability. From the field directly into the pot is ideal. A few hours between picking and cooking is tolerable. But let a whole day elapse and family enthusiasm over the corn will be noticeably lukewarm. Few other foods deteriorate so rapidly after picking.

Sweet Corn in Cooking.

Sweet corn is delicious used as a filler for tomato halves and then baked.

If the sweet corn surplus is to be canned it should be done in the pressure cooker. Hot water bath canning involves too much danger of food poisoning. The housewife who has no pressure cooker would be wise to dry her surplus. Most vegetables are not as palatable dried as canned, but corn properly dried is a delicious product, considered by some as superior to the canned.

In communities where a cold storage plant has installed locker facilities the housewife has still another food preservation method available—freezing. Quick freezing of vegetables is a fairly recent development, but can now be considered to have passed the experimental stage. The Bureau of Plant Industry has spent three years in such experimentation.

The freezing process now recommended by this Bureau is as follows: Start the preservation process soon after the corn is picked. Put the cleaned ears in a square of cheesecloth and process them in boiling water for five minutes if the corn is to be kept on the cob, otherwise four minutes. Plunge into cold water. Pack into containers in a sweetened weak brine—2 per cent salt, and 6 1/2 per cent sugar. Transfer to cold storage room of 0 degrees Fahrenheit. The short yet adequate heating results in a product which has practically all the characteristics of the fresh corn.

Fruit Conserve.

Wash one pound of dried apricots in hot water. Drain and run through food chopper. Cover with juice of two oranges and two lemons. Let stand overnight; next day add one cup shredded canned pineapple. To each cup of fruit add three-fourths cup sugar. Simmer slowly one hour, or until mixture thickens. Stir frequently. Seal in hot jars.

SAVORY CREAMED SHRIMP

One cup shrimps, cut coarsely. One and one-half cups milk, scalded.

One-half cup cream or evaporated milk.

Three tablespoons butter.

Four tablespoons flour.

One teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.

One-half cup grated cheese.

Salt, paprika.

Melt the butter, blend in the flour, then gradually add the scalded milk and stir constantly until thickened. Add the seasonings and the cheese, stirring until well blended. Have the burner turned low to keep the cheese from becoming stringy. Then add the cream and the shrimps and heat slowly until the mixture is heated through.

Use of Bleach.

Laundering tests made recently show that the misuse of bleach is the main cause of loss of tensile strength in fabrics.

A COMBINATION OF FRESH VEGETABLES MAKES A DRESSY SALAD

Any combination of fresh vegetables from your garden or the local market has infinite possibilities as a dressy salad for guests.

Garden Salad.

One-half cup sliced radishes. One cup cubed cucumber. One-half cup sliced or chopped ripe olives. One cup shredded lettuce. One-half cup chopped green sweet pepper. One-fourth cup French dressing. Four tablespoons mayonnaise. Salt. Lettuce.

Combine radishes, cucumber, ripe olives, shredded lettuce, green pepper, French dressing, mayonnaise and salt to taste; toss together lightly. Serve on lettuce garnished salad plates. Serves six.

Jelly Topping.
Rinse pieces of paraffin as you take them from the top of jams and jellies, then put the pieces into a covered jar. This will protect the wax from dust and it will be ready to reheat next summer.

ICEBOX MEALS HELP
KITCHEN VACATION

Salads and Easily Prepared Desserts Help Keep Cook Cool.

For goodness sake, take a vacation. Like the post cards from vacationists, let "X" mark the spot where you take your ease: the kitchen. A rest, a change and a vacation at home. Some tested recipes and a refrigerator to do the work are the cold facts that hot housewives may learn.

Long, warm days mean light, delicate meals—salads, sandwiches, a beverage and a fruit or frozen dessert. Of all the cold comforts, the finest is a delectable dessert that can be prepared quickly in the cool of the day and served chilly and refreshing at the close of your main meal. Take your vacation in that linoleum chamber of yours; let the range rest in peace while you surprise the family and elevate your reputation with these recipes:

Banana Apricot Mousse.
Three-fourths cup apricot pulp. One cup mashed banana (2 to 3 ripe bananas). Three tablespoons lemon juice. One-third cup apricot juice. One-third cup confectioners' sugar. One-eighth teaspoon salt. One cup cream, whipped. Press stewed or canned apricots through a sieve and add to mashed banana. Add lemon juice, apricot juice, sugar and salt and mix well. Fold in whipped cream. Freeze in automatic refrigerator until firm. Ten to 12 servings.

Banana Sherbet.
Two cups mashed banana (4 to 5 ripe bananas). Six tablespoons lemon juice. One-half cup sugar. One-fourth cup white syrup. One-eighth teaspoon salt. One egg white. Two cups milk. Mash bananas and mix thoroughly with lemon juice. Add sugar, corn syrup and salt. Beat egg white until stiff enough to form peaks. Fold into banana mixture. Add mixture slowly to milk, stirring constantly. Freeze in tray of automatic refrigerator, stirring when freezing begins and again just before mixture becomes firm. Eight to 12 servings.

Bananas-Orange Icebox Cake.
One tablespoon granulated sugar. One-half cup cold water. One and one-fourth cups milk. One tablespoon cornstarch. Two-thirds cup sugar. One-fourth teaspoon salt. Four ripe bananas.

Three-fourths cup cookie crumbs. One egg, well beaten. Two tablespoons butter.

One-third cup orange juice. Two tablespoons lemon juice. One tablespoon grated orange rind.

One teaspoon grated lemon rind. Sprinkle gelatin over cold water and let stand until softened. Scald milk over hot water. Mix together cornstarch, sugar and salt and stir into hot milk. Cook 10 minutes, stirring frequently. Stir a little of the hot milk mixture into the beaten egg, then add this to the remaining hot mixture. Cook about 2 minutes longer or until mixture is thickened. Remove from heat and add gelatin, stirring until dissolved. Add butter, fruit juice and rind. Cool.

Line bottom and sides of dish (7x10x2 inches) with lengthwise and crosswise strips of waxed paper, cut to extend beyond edges of dish. Slice half of the banana onto bottom of dish and sprinkle with one-half of crumbs. Pour cooled custard mixture carefully over crumbs. Cover with remaining banana slices and top with crumbs. Chill in refrigerator for several hours. Decorate with whipped cream if desired. Six to eight servings.

LEFTOVER DISHES CAN BE MOST DELICIOUS

Leftover dishes can be as delicious as they are economical. A bit of this and a piece of that, blended with a little imagination, often results in a new taste thrill. This recipe is large, but you can cut it down to suit the size of your family:

Leftover Salad.
Six cups cooked string beans. Five stalks celery, finely chopped. One small onion. One-half to three-fourths cup prepared French dressing.

Salt, pepper, paprika and celery. Three tablespoons vinegar.

Three tablespoons chopped, sweet pickle.

Three tablespoons capers (if you have to have them), salt to taste. Keep in refrigerator for at least two hours. Serve garnished with hard cooked egg slices.

Lobster Sauce.
Cut one or two lobsters meat (canned will do) in small pieces. Fry in butter until golden yellow. Make a cream sauce with two tablespoons butter, one tablespoon flour and one-half cup cream. Add salt and pepper to taste. Cook until thickened and then add one-half cup very finely minced cooked celery and the lobster meat. Surround the mold with this sauce, which should be hot. The contrast between the cold mousse and the hot sauce is always interesting.

A Burned Pan.
If a vegetable or cereal burns plunge the vessel containing the food into cold water and allow it to remain for a few minutes then pour it into a second pan or dish.

CHEESE PIE

One-fourth cup butter. Three-fourths cup sugar. Five egg yolks, beaten well. Two teaspoons lemon juice. One teaspoon lemon rind. One pound cottage cheese. Two tablespoons cornstarch. One-half cup cream. Five egg whites.

Cream the butter and add the sugar. When thoroughly mixed, add the egg yolks, lemon juice and one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one tall can evaporated milk, one cup water, three tablespoons chopped persi-

on. Cook potatoes and onions until tender in water to cover. Force through sieve, add seasonings and diluted evaporated milk. Add parley, heat and serve.

COLD SUPPER?
A can of salmon.
2 small onions chopped

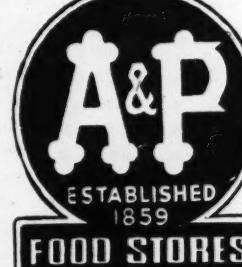

1 tablespoon Vinegar.

Mix together well with a good dash

ICEBOX DESSERT FINDS FAVOR IN SUMMER

Looks and Tastes Cool and Makes a Fitting Conclusion to Warm Weather Meal.

Ice cream and ice box desserts are particular favorites when the mercury begins climbing toward the 90 mark. These desserts look and taste cool and are very little trouble to make. Seasonal fruits are most popular for fruit ice creams and sherbets. Fresh pineapple cannot be used since it keeps a freezing mixture from congealing. It should be cooked in a syrup before using.

Pineapple Marshmallow Puffs. One-half pound marshmallows (cut in small pieces). One-half cup crushed pineapple (drained). One-half pint whipping cream (whipped). One-half cup nut meats (chopped). Three-quarters cup graham cracker crumbs.

Add cut marshmallows to crushed pineapple and let stand about one-half hour in refrigerator. Fold pine-apple-marshmallow mixture into whipped cream. Add nut meats. Chill until mixture begins to set, about one hour. Place graham cracker crumbs on wax paper. Drop marshmallow cream mixture by spoonfuls (one at a time) on crumbs and cover completely with crumbs. Lift with spatula onto plate and chill until ready to serve (at least one-half hour). Serve on lace paper doilies and you will have an attractive, delicious and nutritious dessert for luncheons, bridge refreshments, or the family dinner. Makes 10 puffs.

Angel Parfait. Soak one-half teaspoon gelatin in one tablespoon cold water for five minutes. Boll one cup sugar and one-half cup water to soft ball stage (238 degrees). Pour slowly over three egg whites, beaten stiff. Add gelatin and beat until cool. Fold in one pint cream, stiffly beaten, and add one teaspoon vanilla. Pour into pans and freeze without stirring, until mixture holds its shape.

English Toffee Ice Cream. One-half pound marshmallows. Three cups and two tablespoons milk.

One-half pint whipping cream (whipped). One-half cup English Toffee (crushed).

Heat the marshmallows and the two tablespoons of milk in a saucepan over a low fire. Stir constantly with a folding motion, heating until marshmallows are about half melted (they will look like soft, round balls coated with marshmallow syrup). Remove from flame and fold over and over until mixture is a smooth fluffy mass. Cool. Then gradually add the three cups of milk and blend. Pour into freezing tray of automatic refrigerator and chill until mixture just begins to freeze. Stir mixture thoroughly at this point, and then fold in the whipping cream. Set cold control of refrigerator to coldest degree possible and freeze, stirring several times during the freezing period. Just before the ice cream becomes firmly frozen, fold in the English Toffee. Return to freezing unit and continue freezing until ice cream is solid.

Orange Ice Cream. Two cups sugar. Four cups water.

Two cups orange juice. One-quarter cup lemon juice. Grated rind of two oranges. Boil sugar and water for 20 minutes. Add orange juice and grated orange rind. Cool. Strain and freeze.

Lime Mousse. Beat one cup of cream until stiff with one-quarter cup powdered sugar and four drops oil of lime. Color a delicate shade with green color paste. Freeze until firm.

Orange Ice Cream. (Automatic refrigerator method.) Two-thirds cup condensed milk. One-half cup orange juice. One and one-half teaspoon grated orange rind.

One cup whipping cream. Blend condensed milk, orange juice and grated orange rind thoroughly. Chill. Whip cream to custard-like consistency and fold into chilled mixture. Pour into freezing pan. Place in freezing unit. After mixture is about half frozen remove from refrigerator. Scrape mixture from sides and bottom of pan. Beat until smooth, but not until melted. Smooth out and replace in freezing unit until frozen for serving. Makes six regular servings.

Brin Biscuits. One-half cup bran. Three-fourths cup buttermilk. One and one-half cups flour. One teaspoon baking powder. One-half teaspoon soda. One teaspoon salt.

One-third cup shortening. Soak bran in buttermilk. Sift flour, baking powder, soda and salt together. Cut in shortening until mixture is like coarse cornmeal. Add soaked bran, stir until dough follows fork around bowl. Turn on to floured board; knead lightly a few seconds; roll or pat to one-half inch thickness and cut with floured cutter, or roll in sheet to cover casserole and bake as already suggested. If sweet milk is used instead of buttermilk, omit soda and increase baking powder to three teaspoonfuls.

LUNCHEON PLATE TEASES WEARY APPETITES INTO FOOD CONSCIOUSNESS

The appetite is stimulated by the sight of a plate of food attractively arranged, and one of the simplest means of achieving this result is to prepare a varied salad plate. During the summer months many members of the family have to be urged to eat what they should, and this is a successful method of getting results.

Stuffed peppers give an interesting color note and suppose you use a pepper case for the center of interest of the luncheon plate. Arrange lettuce on the plate and in the center place the pepper half. Fill the pepper with some favorite fish such as canned shrimp, salmon, tuna or crab. Do not mix the fish with anything. Just place honest-to-goodness big pieces of it in the shell, and then over it pour some well-seasoned French dressing. You have a section of lemon beside it to be used instead of the dressing.

Radiating from the center pepper shell arrange mounds of food such as asparagus tips, whole green beans, sliced beets, sections of tomatoes, slices of cucumbers, and possibly add a radish rose for the final touch of color. Season the vegetables with French dressing and pass mayonnaise for those who wish it. Some caviar added to the mayonnaise is a festive touch, and some extra prepared mustard added to it is good, too.

Sardines and anchovies fit into luncheon plates of this style, as do canned whole kernel corn mixed with pimiento, mixed vegetables, artichoke hearts, carrots and peas. In fact many foods can be used. Remember to have colors that do not clash, textures of foods that are different, flavors that are different, and above all a dressing that brings out the taste of all the foods.

Luncheon plates of this type are easy to prepare if advantage is taken of the many kinds of foods in the market. Chill the ingredients before serving.

To Freshen Bread. Don't throw away stale loaf of bread. Wrap it in a wet cloth for about one minute. Then place in a 350 degree oven for 30 minutes. Serve warm.

For Fruit Salad. When preparing fruit salad sprinkle bananas, peaches, pears and apples with lemon juice or marinate with French dressing as soon as they are out. This prevents discoloration from exposure to air.

A Grapefruit Note. Grapefruit sections covered with honey and then chilled are delicious appetizers. Maple syrup may be used in place of the honey.

LOOK AT THE CALENDAR BEFORE YOU BUY TISSUE

You can learn something about tissue values by looking at a paper calendar—for both are made from wood.

But all wood is part soft and part harsh. And the soft part is so soft and downy that celanese garments are made of it. It is called Cellulose.

The harsh part is called Lignone—fine in cardboards and rough, tough papers. But not so fine in a toilet tissue. It makes toilet tissue coarse and harsh.

THERE IS NO LIGNONE IN NORTHERN TISSUE—it is 100% Cellulose! Try this marvelously softer and safer tissue. Ask for Northern Tissue today—at your dealer's.

HE ATE ALL-BRAN AND IMPROVED WONDERFULLY

Read this voluntary letter: "In regard to your ALL-BRAN, it is marked on the package 'best as a cereal, best for cooking,' and, as far as I am concerned, you might add 'best for health.' Since I have begun to eat it, I have improved wonderfully." —Mr. H. E. Poole, 312 W. Franklin Street, Jackson, Mich.

ALL-BRAN corrects common constipation, due to meals low in "bulk." Within the body, it absorbs water and forms a soft mass, gently sponging out the system.

ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin B to tone up the intestines, and iron for the blood. Isn't this food better than taking weakening pills and drugs?

Eat two tablespoonsfuls daily, either as a cereal with milk or cream, or in recipes. In chronic cases, with each meal. Sold by all grocers. Made and guaranteed by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

COLD MEAT CUTS
OFFER VARIETY NOW

Find Way Into Whole Meal Salads, Appetizers or Hot Casserole Dishes.

Cold meats are the stars in the cast of summer foods. They are unlimited in variety—for size, flavor and texture and just as unlimited in their uses. Don't think that cold meats are good only for cold slicing or sandwiches. They also find their way into whole meal salads, dainty appetizers or hot casserole dishes for cool evenings.

Probably no use is more appealing to summer tastes than the crispy salads that are served as the main dish of the meal with hot breads and a green vegetable. Well-seasoned sausages cut into potato salad in goodly quantity make marvelous eating for hungry folks. Almost any of the cold meats including dry sausages, meat loaves and cooked ham may be used here. Just cut them into small or medium size cubes and add them in almost equal proportions to the potato. Other ingredients like egg, pickle and mayonnaise remain the same in amount.

Another Version.

Another version of the potato-and-meat salad is made by frying round slices of sausage just until it curls like a small cup—then filling the cups with potato salad or cabbage slaw.

Although it may seem questionable to suggest the combination of oranges and celery with cold meats, you'll be delightfully surprised with the result. Be sure to use mild flavored meats for this mixture—cold chicken, cold ham, cold veal or veal loaf.

Then there are all sorts of jellied meat salads which have as their base a jellied consomme with cubed or sliced cold meats and eggs arranged in the jelly. Make meat salads one of your summer standards.

Bologna Cups With Hot Potato Salad.

Six slices of large bologna. Two cups cold cooked potato. Two sweet pickles. One hard cooked egg. One tablespoon chopped onion. Two tablespoons vinegar. Mayonnaise to moisten.

Slice bologna in thin slices, straight across the sausage. Leave casing on outside. Place in a frying pan and heat gradually until the edges curl up to form a perfect cup. Fill with hot potato salad made by mixing the potatoes, sliced eggs, pickles, vinegar, onion and mayonnaise and heating slowly in the top of a double boiler. Add extra seasoning of salt if desired. Fill bologna cups on a platter and garnish with crisp parsley.

Summer Meat Salad.

Two cups cold cubed veal or chicken. Three oranges. One-half cup toasted almonds. Two cups coarse cut celery. French dressing.

Cut veal in one-half inch cubes. Peel oranges and section with knife so that all white tissues are discarded. Mix ingredients lightly and blend with top French dressing. Serve on watercress.

SALMON SALAD MOLD

One tablespoon gelatin. One-fourth cup cold water. Two and one-half tablespoons lemon juice.

One-half cup flaked salmon (cooked or canned). One-half cup mayonnaise. One-half cup chopped celery. Two tablespoons chopped green pepper.

One-half teaspoon chopped onion. Salt, pepper and paprika to taste.

Soften the gelatin in cold water. Dissolve over hot water. When cool, add it to the lemon juice, salmon, mayonnaise, chopped vegetables and seasonings. Mix thoroughly. Pour into a fish-shaped mold and chill until firm. Unmold, place a slice of stuffed olive to indicate the eye and garnish with watercress. Serve with green mayonnaise, in which finely chopped cucumber has been mixed, or with a dressing made of half old-fashioned boiled dressing and half mayonnaise.

FROZEN RELISH ADDS ZEST TO ANY MAN'S DINNER

We've forgotten what is revealed in "when you look in the heart of a rose," as the song goes, but when you look in the heart of this tomato rose, you'll find a trim little square of tantalizing frozen relish, that will add zest to any man's dinner.

Relish Frappe.

One-fourth pound marshmallows. One tablespoon milk. One cup cottage cheese. One teaspoon salt. Two tablespoons green pepper (chopped). Two tablespoons pimento (chopped). Two tablespoons horseradish. One tablespoon vinegar. Three-fourths cup whipping cream (whipped).

Place marshmallows and milk in saucepan and heat over very low flame, folding over and over until marshmallows are about half-melted. Remove from flame and continue folding process until marshmallows have formed a smooth fluffy mass. Cool. Blend together cottage cheese, salt, green pepper, pimento, horseradish and vinegar and add marshmallow mixture. Blend thoroughly. Then fold in whipped cream. Place in freezing tray or automatic refrigerator and freeze at coldest degree possible. Cut in squares and serve in a tomato cut rose-fashion, or on a slice of tomato, embedded in a crisp nest of lettuce.

Instead of freezing this relish in the refrigerator tray proper, you might try pouring the mixture into little paper cups, and placing these little cups in the refrigerator tray to freeze. Then you can serve 'em just as is' making not only a piquant addition to the meat course, but a novel and attractive one.

Green corn is in the markets now it is a pleasing addition to the dish.

Tenderness in an ear of corn depends largely on the way it is cooked. There are certain tricks of seasoning which add much to its good qualities.

Corn may be cooked in milk or boiled in water that has been seasoned with salt and sugar. Green corn is known as "sweet corn," but the journey from field to market often changes occur.

The addition of water restores some of the pristine sweet flavor.

Short Cooking Time.

Corn should never be cooked longer than six or eight minutes, overcooking after the point of tension has been reached causes kernels to become tough and dull. Corn that is cut from the ear and steamed should not be boiled more than five minutes. Put it in the pan with just enough water to permit cooking; then add salt, cream, sugar and salt and boil for two minutes.

It makes one cup of corn about three medium-sized ears and one cup of corn requires one cup of corn.

It is a good idea to add two teaspoons of sugar to the batter used for corn fritters. This gives not only a delicious flavor but makes the corn fritters due to the car-bonation of the sugar.

Green Corn Pudding.

Boil corn in the ear and scrape the pulp. For two cups of corn use two cups milk, three eggs, two tablespoons melted butter, one teaspoon sugar and one teaspoon salt. Beat the eggs and add the other ingredients. Pour into a buttered and buttered (baking dish) set in a pan of water and bake in a moderate oven until the pudding is done.

This recipe requires about one hour for cooking.

Southern Corn Custard.

Two cups corn
Three eggs
Two tablespoons melted butter
Two cups milk
One-half teaspoon sugar
Salt and pepper to taste
Cracker crumbs

But eggs well and add to the milk. Melt the butter and with the salt add to corn and eggs and stir well. Add seasonings and sugar.

Put into a buttered casserole or baking dish, sprinkle with cracker crumbs and dot with butter and bake in a slow oven (300 degrees) for about 40 minutes or until custard is set.

Cream of Corn Souffle.

Two cups corn
Three tablespoons butter
Two tablespoons flour
One teaspoon salt
Pinch of black pepper
One quart milk Enough corn from cobs to make one cupful. Melt the butter in a saucepan and blend the milk and when this begins to thicken add the corn, stir for a few minutes and then serve. Sprinkling serving with paprika and a few toast cubes and a spoonful of unsweetened whipped cream.

Bridge for Yellow River.

The equipment was reported to include knock-down steel and wooden bridges for the crossing of the Yellow River.

In the battle area around Peiping and Tientsin, foreign military experts estimated the Chinese had 12,000 troops to 15,000 Japanese.

Since the crisis began Japan has more than doubled its garrison in North China under the 1901 Boxer

Protocol.

Reinforcements from Manchukuo continue to reach Tientsin almost hourly by way of Shantung.

Many of these reinforcements are moved immediately to the field base established at Fengtai, a few miles southwest of here on the Peiping-Hankow railway. Chinese believe Japan's plan is to cut Peiping off from the south by establishing a line from Tientsin through the Nanyuan and Fengtai rail and air bases to beyond Marco Polo bridge.

Fighting All Around Peiping.

A detachment of 800 Japanese troops from Tientsin moved up along this line last night in a fleet of trucks.

The clashes reported from virtually all sides of Peiping were thought to have been covering movements for these maneuvers.

Japanese cavalry, scudding across the city, were reported to have crossed continually yesterday and this morning with Chinese infantry.

Casualties were reported for both sides.

Reports from Fengtai said the Japanese had plastered the house walls there with announcements of their purpose to drive the Twenty-ninth Army out of Hopei.

Japanese sources said the Tienning Foreign Office Announcement On Reinforcements.

NANKING, July 15.—The Chinese Government's Foreign Office spokesman disclosed today that the Central Government had ordered reinforcements to North China to support the Twenty-ninth Route

Army.

China's paramount goal was peace, he said, but added "such military reinforcements have been called by China's Government in support of the army opposing the Japanese as caution and self-preservation dictated."

Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, the Premier, is directing the movements of the military units from his summer headquarters at Kuling, the spokesman said.

"He has the military situation at his fingertips and is co-ordinating all military activities. He won't hesitate for a moment to leave

Kuling for North China if his predictions are realized," he said.

"Expressions of loyalty from military units throughout the nation are pouring into Nanking, these including Kwangtung and Kwangsi provinces.

"Japanese interpretations of China's movements against the Japanese as military aggression in North China, whether these moves be military or otherwise, deliberately are designed to detract from China's primary desire of maintaining in every activity of the nation's Government, the paramount goal of peace, he said.

Placards on Light Standards Tell Delinquents of 75 Per Cent Remission Through August.

Collections of delinquent personal property and real estate taxes have shown a sharp decrease since the period of complete remission of penalties expired on June 30. Total collections since then, with 75 per cent of the penalties remitted, were only $35,735. Collector William F.
Baumann said today.

In the period of complete remission, between June 10 and July 1, the total collected was $3,208,205; and between March 1, the start of the Collector's fiscal year, and June 10, with ordinary penalties in force, receipts were $694,859. The 75 per cent remission will apply during July and August. Fifty per cent of the penalties will be remitted during September and October, and 25 per cent during November and December.

Baumann is continuing his campaign for collection of the delinquent taxes. Large red-lettered placards urging taxpayers to take advantage of the 75 per cent remission rate now in effect have been placed on light standards throughrevolted for more food at a camp near here today.

A chef fled in terror when they stormed the kitchen. The cook locked himself in a neighboring farmhouse until he was driven through a hail of stones to summon police from Scarborough.
When police arrived, peace had been restored. The ringleaders were locked in their rooms await-

PARITY PRICE FARM BILL IS INTRODUCED

Congress Gets Revised Measure
Providing for Ever-Normal
Granary Program.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Senators Pope of Idaho and McGill of Kansas, Democrats, submitted to the Senate today, a revised draft of the long-pending proposed "Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1937." The bill embodies Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's ever-normal
granary program.

Pope was prevented from introducing the measure for more than a week by the Senate parlamentary war over the court bill.

The breakup of the legislative log jam resulting from the death of Senator Robinson (Dem., Arkansas, majority leader, gave him his opportunity.

Pope declared a 200,000,000-bushel wheat surplus was in prospect this year, and said the bill was "designed to deal with a problem which is likely to arise in serious form in 1938 and following years."

"This year's production clearly indicates that the Soil Conservation Act will not adequately control the accumulation of surplus farm commodities," he added.

The new farm bill, endorsed in principle by Wallace at informal Senate and House hearings prior to its actual introduction, is aimed chiefly on the 1939-14 level for protection assuring "parity" prices based on the production of wheat, cotton, corn, rice and tobacco.

The ever-normal granary feature provides for the storage and carryover in years of heavy yield of a maximum of 10 per cent of these commodities.

Under contracts between the Agriculture Secretary and farmers, agriculture division, and marketing agencies would be employed to preserve the balance between annual supply and demand.

Pope and McGill added a provision to the tentative draft on which hearings have been held calling for a referendum of producers before putting the quotas into effect. They contended this would make "democratic" the only mandatory section of the legislation.

The bill was introduced in the House by Representative Flanagan (Dem., Virginia).

FIVE STRIKERS ACQUITTED OF PEACE DISTURBANCE

Police Testify They Did Not See Any Garment Workers Maltreated.

Five young women, striking garment workers of the Solomon Manufacturing Co., were acquitted of 14 peace disturbance charges yesterday by Police Judge James F.
Nangle.

The charges were brought against the defendants May 18, June 30 and July 7, and were an outgrowth of altercations in which it was alleged non-union employees were struck by thrown eggs, slashed and pummeled when they attempted to enter the plant at 1508
Washington avenue.

Policemen testified they did not see any of the workers maltreated, and the defendants denied the charges. They were Clara Spain, 1897 South Fourteenth street; Helen Rupper, Madison; Marjorie Foster, 4328 West Pine boulevard; Pauline Gahr, 4045 McPherson avenue, and Doris Smith, 4618 Enright avenue.

A 25-cent assessment on St. Louis members of the United Electrical and Radio Workers of America has been voted for support of the strike, being conducted at Local 1117 of the union at the Superior
Electric Products Corporation, 1310
South Thirteenth street, Arthur

union, announced yesterday.

The assessment, approved by the joint council of the union, which is affiliated with the Committee for Industrial Organization, will raise nearly $2000 to be used to assist the 120 strikers and their families, Malano said. The strike was called June 23 in demand of recognition of the union as the sole agency for collective bargaining.

Men Accused of Abducting
John J. O'Connell Jr.

By the Associated Press.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 15.—Michael J. Winter, chief defense counsel, in the trial of eight men for the kidnaping of John J. O'Connell Jr., said today he had issued a subpoena for James J. Braddock, former world's heavyweight champion, and his manager, Joe Gould, as witnesses for the defense.

Their testimony is sought, Winter said, to show that one of the defendants, George Garguillo, was not a fugitive from justice after July, 1933, the month of the kidnaping, and that the Government could have detained him in connection with the crime at any time. Braddock and Gould, the defense attorney, says, knew Garguillo as operator of a New Jersey boxing string.

Two sisters told the jury today that Harold (Red) Crowley, one of the eight on trial, lived in New York and Brooklyn for the time the crime was committed until his arrest this year. One of them, petite Alice Souci, said she lived with the defendant under the name of "Mrs. Harold Crowley" at several addresses, and that the two of them had mail delivered and opened charge accounts under the name

Crowley. Florence Souci testified she resided three months with Crowley and her sister in a Brooklyn apartment in 1933.

The defense presented the testimony in an effort to show Crowley was not a fugitive from justice, as contended by the Government.

The Government must prove all of the defendants fugitives for at least 10 months since July, 1933, inasmuch as more than three years—the time limit for prosecution under the Lindbergh law—have passed since the crime and handing down of the indictments.

THE MELLOW 2 YEAR OLD WHISKEY WITH NO ROUGH EDGES

Unlike whiskey which formerly matured more slowly in winter than in summer, TEN HIGH mellowed equally fast every minute of every month—in the year-round summer temperature of Hiram Walker's weather-controlled rackhouses. That's why TEN HIGH is the whiskey with "no rough edges".

WELL, I'LL TELL YOU—By BOB BURNS

THE main thing that has made the human race progress to its present high standard, is that spark that we all have in us that makes us want to better ourselves. Some people may appear indolent and without ambition at all, but if you'll approach 'em in the right way, you'll find the spark is there—just waitin' to be fanned into a flame. My Cousin Dillard never appeared to have any ambition at all, and all he did was lay on the bank and fish, day after day. One day, while he was fishin', I walked up to him and I says, "Why don't you try to better yourself?" And he says, "I'm perfectly satisfied." He said, "I wouldn't trade places with President Roosevelt." I says, "Wouldn't you for a million dollars?" And he says, "No." I says, "How about five million?" And he says, "No." After a while I says, "Well, how about 10 million?" Cousin Dillard sat up and he says, "All right, now you're talkin' real dough—I might consider that!"

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION
By Martha CarrMaking Junior
Use Dad's Old
Swimming SuitShould We Force 1937
Youngsters to Obey 1907 Rules?

By Elsie Robinson

GET in on this—it's good. "Fat" started it. Fat—otherwise John Allen Jones—is 13, has ideas of his own and believes the world is picking on him. As demonstrated by the Bathing Suit Outrage.

Came the first swimming party of the year and, as usual, Fat had lost his old suit. Nobody had one to lend. Whereupon arose the usual bickering—charges, outcries, recriminations.

Enter Mom, beaming—with a Happy Thought! She knew the very thing—Dad's old suit! Too small for Dad, but just Dandy for Junior!

Off she rushed . . . back she came . . . waving the suit triumphantly. "See, son, it's exactly right! Isn't it lucky that—"

An outraged bleat stopped her. "Aw, gosh, Mom—you don't expect me to wear a thing like that!"

"For goodness sake, why not?" "Why, no-o-oobody wears suits like that now. Lookit that ole top! Lookit those ole trunks! Gee, Mom—why, if I went out in a suit like that, the fellers 'd kid me awful! Honst, Mom, I'd rather never go swimming again, not in my whole life, than wear that goofy ole suit! If you knew how a feller felt! I can't, I tell you . . . I just won't!"

"Listen here, Young Man! I've had just about enough of this nonsense. This is a perfectly good suit. No one could possibly tell it from a new one—and what would it matter if they did? S'pose it is an inch longer—what does that matter? Your father would be glad to wear it if he could, and things have come to a pretty pass if you must have better things than your own father."

"Why, when he was your age, he was glad to get anything . . . just as long as he could go to the party. Youngsters didn't have such crazy ideas then! Believe me, we took what we could get and were glad for it. So you just march out of here, Young Man, with that suit, and don't let me hear another word out of you!"

So Fat marched. But Mom's compunction would have been badly dented if she had seen him 10 miles after . . . swapping his brand new $5 microscope for the rental of more suitable haberdashery, having deposited Dad's suit in Buck's garage pail!

SOUNDS familiar, doesn't it? Dolors to doughnuts, you face such a rumpus daily in your own house. Junior contemplating suicide because Dad says the old tennis racket is good enough. Sister flouncing off in a tempest of tears because Mom refuses to let her have permanent. What's the answer?

Mom of course is right in declaring that youngsters once had to "take what they could get and no back talk"—but she's fibbing a bit when she says that they were glad for it.

Youngsters are natural conformists . . . hate "being different" . . . feel humiliated by such differences and bitterly resentful toward the elders who cause them. This was as true in 1907 as it is in 1937.

Should Mom and Dad remember this fact and follow the modern trend, giving the youngsters their way within reason.

Or should they forget their own youthful pangs . . . pooh-pooh Junior's and Sister's distress . . . force them to wear and do things which are different, from their schoolmates?

Will that make Junior and Sister "more sensible and practical"? Will it "teach them the value of money" and consideration for their hard-working parents? Or will it merely hurt and harden them . . . make them resent all authority . . . and cruelly mar the one period of their lives when they might rightly expect tender understanding and carefree joy?

My dear Mrs. Carr: I AM planning to be married in the early part of October and would like your opinion on several points.

1. Since October weather is usually mild and sometimes quite warm, would a lace wedding gown be appropriate, or would velvet be a better choice?

2. In the event I should choose lace, would it be necessary for my two attendants to wear lace also, or would chiffon or some other material be a better choice?

3. In the event I should choose velvet, would moire be all right for my attendants?

4. Your suggestions for color combinations would be appreciated. I would prefer each to wear something with at least a little contrast.

5. For the past several years I have been employed and during this time have made several friends whom I like very much. I have reason to believe that the feeling is mutual. Of course, those who live in the vicinity will be sent an invitation, but there are several who have moved to cities far away and whom I am sure would not be able to attend the ceremony under any circumstances. After I am married I shall probably never see them again, and would like for them to know that I am to be married, but do not want to send them a special invitation for several reasons. First, since it is impossible for them to attend the ceremony, I do not wish to impose upon friendship and make them feel obligated to end the silence in her stead.

He lay there for a few seconds, and then he called. Nobody answered. Astonished, he scrambled out of bed and went looking for her. In his mother's chair by the sitting room window sat Aunt Prissy, reading the newspaper. "Where's mother? Tell her I want her," said Bobbie loudly.

Aunt Prissy read the paragraph through, slowly lowered the paper and said in a far-away voice,

"What's that? O, your mother?" She left for a vacation this morning," raised her paper again, and let the silence speak in her stead.

For a few minutes Bobbie stood there, gazing at the folded newspaper, then he sighed and said,

"Well, if that's the case—I'll dress and have my breakfast. Am I to have a bath or not?"

"A bath? O, of course, if you like. Need any help?"

"No. S'cept maybe drying my back."

"Call Hoo-hoo when you're ready," said Aunt Prissy, returning to her reading. Soon she heard the water running and went to see how things were getting on.

A very thoughtful-looking Bobbie stood by the tub, his wash rag in his hand, wondering just what to do next.

"I'll lend you a hand this morning," said Aunt Prissy briskly.

"O, just so it won't freeze me, I don't care," said Bobbie.

Bathed and dressed, Bobbie looked around for breakfast. Aunt Prissy said nothing. "Is my breakfast ready?"

"I think so. I think Mollie was getting it ready while you had your bath. You might ask her and see."

It is smarter now to have bridesmaids dressed alike, color, material, design and bouquet the same. The maid of honor wears a contrasting but harmonious color, usually of the same material and her bouquet may combine the colors and hers.

3. If you are not to have announcements made as well as invitations, your idea of writing a letter would be quite all right; but I believe this might make them feel the same sense of obligation.

If your cards invite all your friends to the church and a few only to the house, then you could send them church invitations; ordinarily a gift is not expected in this case. If you write the notes, this should be done after the wedding, possibly while we sat and talked in snatches while the rehearsal continued.

"I'll lend you a hand this morning," said Aunt Prissy briskly.

"O, just so it won't freeze me, I don't care," said Bobbie.

Bathed and dressed, Bobbie looked around for breakfast. Aunt Prissy said nothing. "Is my breakfast ready?"

It took Bobbie only a few minutes to decide that the old-style behavior would not do. He gave very little trouble. He ate his meals when they were offered him, he went to bed without a tantrum. He asked for his mother repeatedly, but made no demonstration when he was told she had gone away for a rest and would come back when she felt able to take care of him again.

"She might come sooner if she knew you were not going to be a lot of trouble to her," said Aunt Prissy in her cool and casual tone.

Bobbie seemed to think that over. About four hours afterward he announced as one having made a grave decision. "You tell mother that when she comes back I won't make her tired. I'll help myself on in a while."

"Once in a while? What's the idea?" You've grown up, young man, and you are going to help yourself after this." He really was much better.

I AM a girl 19 years old. I am very much in love with a young man, with whom I have been going five months. He has never told me anything about his family; as they live several hundred miles from here. I know nothing about them. Recently I was told that he is a married man. Now I am so worried. Please tell me what this is true or false?

This man comes to see me once a week and tells me he loves me and has asked me to become his bride. I am so worried. Please tell me what this is true or false?

One Method

Spoiled TotMother's Absent Treatment Taught Little Bobbie a Lesson.

By Angelo Patri

BOBBIE, aged 4, had been making his mother's life a martyrdom. He would not eat without spoon-feeding and not without dramatic accompaniments. He said, "No, I won't do anything," when his mother asked or ordered. The more she fought or threatened, the stouter became his determination to oppose her.

One morning Bobbie awoke, turning over and looked about, expecting his mother to come at once and say, "Up now, and take your bath so I can get on with my work" and he was all ready to say, "No, I don't want to."

Mother did not come. He lay there for a few seconds, and then he called. Nobody answered. Astonished, he scrambled out of bed and went looking for her. AN 8-YEAR-OLD
MUSICAL PRODIGY

Bobby La Marchina, Son of a Musician, Played Cello So Well With Little Symphony That He Got to Hold Steering Wheel on His Dad's Car on Way Home

By DOROTHY COLEMAN

THE morning of his debut as a cellist with the Little Symphony, eight-year-old Bobby La Marchina was much more upset over the debut in his new bicycle than over the Bach he was to play that night. After he had run through his part of the program with the orchestra for the second and final time, we sat and talked in snatches while the rehearsal continued.

Or rather I sat. He wiggled and squirmed, beating time constantly with a hand or foot; jumping up to rescue his cello from a curious little girl, slamming down seats to the dismay of Conductor Hans Lange, knotting a man-sized kerchief around his knees. His shirt tail flapped. His hair straggled over dark brown eyes, his stubby fingers were sticky, and his bare legs bumped with chigger bites.

He picked them up on the farm near Antonio, where he is spending the summer with his father, Antonio La Marchina, and the second Mrs. La Marchina. The boy's father, for whom he actually is not, is cellist with the Little Symphony and also plays with the St. Louis Symphony in the winter.

The only "out" about being in the country, as Bobby sees it, is that his bicycle which was new just before they moved from the city a month ago, doesn't take to dirt roads a bit well. That's how he got the dent in it, falling over a stone. Anything on wheels fascinates the youngster, his father interposed.

He picked them up on the farm near Antonio, where he is spending the summer with his father, Antonio La Marchina, and the second Mrs. La Marchina. The boy's father, for whom he actually is not, is cellist with the Little Symphony and also plays with the St. Louis Symphony in the winter.

The boy was all for it, although he was not quite sure what his father meant, for about the only music he had heard was at the movies his mother took him to see in New York.

"Once in a while? What's the idea?" You've grown up, young man, and you are going to help yourself after this." He really was much better.

Send me some tender word, my own;
Pour out the love for which I pine.
Passionate, ardent, deep! Don't phone;

CHAPTER THREE.

THROUGH six months of the year Ronny MacAllister practically lived in transit, frenzied transit, for not only was he growing increasingly popular as a general announcer, but was widely recognized as one of the most complete and accurate encyclopedias of major sport in the country. He was still second man on the first-choice assignments, but so well was he liked that even those who must presently step down to make room for him could not but wish him luck.

As a boy in Maple Village, New Hampshire, Ronny's one ambition had been to play professional baseball. He loved the game and before he was 18 he knew the record of every player of consequence for years back. But while baseball was his first love, he gave, in both high school and college, an equally good account of himself in basketball and football and immediately after his graduation from Bates he was snapped up by the sports department of a Boston daily.

He began as a reporter, loved it, ate up his assignments, became a familiar figure at sporting events throughout New England and discovered to his utter confusion that he had a strange fascination for the opposite sex. He was invited to everything, almost never accepted an invitation, and was genuinely relieved when he was made assistant sports editor, which kept him at a desk most of his working hours. Six months later he was sports editor and gave the daily sports broadcast over the paper's privately owned station, and was completely happy in that job when the big chain's representative arrived and offered him a contract.

—Walter Travinski.

But even with the news game virus in his blood, Ronny still thought of himself as a potential big league catcher and would have refused the contract except for the sheerest accident. He called his mother at Maple Village and told her about the offer. He said, "It sounds big, but I like what I'm doing. What do you think, Mom?"

Ans, "Well, decide for yourself, Ronny. Take either road and if it doesn't lead anywhere, then you can come home and help me run the Guardian."

And then she said, "Lucille Baldwin ran over last night to say she had heard one of your broadcasts. She said, 'He was marvelous. If one of the New York stations doesn't sign him up soon, I miss my guess.'" Lucille Baldwin, his high school sweetheart whom he had not seen in more than five years. And she thought he was still good enough for big time. Well, and thus was a momentous decision made—he would soon find out. He signed the contract.

But now, driving back to New York from Emily Stewart's party, really—his thoughts regularly turned from the prospect of at least half a night in his own quarters to reviewing and reviewing again the naive performance he had put on at his cousin's barely an hour ago.

It was not so much what he had done, though he felt a complete fool for having done it, as that he had not had sense enough to realize that Sandra Brooke was not the sweet, innocent child of their first longago meeting. He knew very little about Bryant Wilson, but that little was enough.

He groaned aloud. What a clown he had made of himself. What a perfect imbecile he had been to think there could be anything sweet and innocent about a Park Avenue snob.

Chet, smiling, said, "What a clown he is, but he's a good boy. He's got a good heart, and he's a good boy."

Next morning's mail brought Ronny two letters, one from his mother, the other from Lucille Baldwin whom he realized with a pang of conscience, he had almost forgotten.

Lucille was a neat little note-saying she had dropped in to see him again, and found her very well but naturally anxious to see her boy and that she, Lucille, "and all your friends in Maple Village are looking forward to your Christmas visit. We are planning an old-fashioned square dance in Spenger's barn and we would like so much for you to call the sets. (Remember the husking bee at Spenger's the autumn before we finished high school?) Against all the rules, you kissed me five times and I blushed to think about it—kissed you twice." We are delighted at the prospect of seeing you again and hope you will be able to stay for days and days."

Suddenly she rose, crossed the floor, and sat on Chet's knees. "Chet, darling—you and I are intelligent civilized persons. We can discuss things without getting in a feather dust:

"Don't be a common worrier, Sandra. You've an exceptionally capable family and I dare say each can do his own particular fretting better than you can do it for him."

"We're going to be Mr. and Mrs. Eddy before long, and that's something to be happy about—or aren't we?"

Sandra looked up at him, laughing. "Oh, Stephen, you're good for me." She thought of all the years she had known Stephen. There had never been a time in her conscious being when Stephen had not been a part of her life. And a sweet sense of peace came over her as her thoughts turned slowly from the past to the years that lay ahead. Years of being loved and cared for by Stephen, years of going on and on in this secure and comfortable groove that was Park Avenue as she knew it. She had never known anything else, could never be happy out of it. And having this to the end of her days was what being Stephen's wife would mean.

She tightened her arm against his shoulder, and he felt her earnest gaze. "Yes, darling, she told him, "we're going to be Mr. and Mrs. Eddy before long, and I'm happy about it." Firmly shutting her hand against a mop of red hair and a gay, contagious grin and a voice fresh in memory saying sadly, "It's something I've wanted to do for years and years and will want to do again, very often, and never will."

Sandra didn't say anything. She felt he had said all that could be said just now.

Stephen came Sunday afternoon and not five minutes later David arrived and there was a gay little reunion with Chet and Enid being quite normal. But Stephen must have sensed Sandra's uneasiness, for he told her when they went out for a brisk walk in the

(HE WAS THE FATHER OF 113 ILLEGITIMATE CHILDREN)

HE LEFT $600,000.00 IN CASH WHEN HE DIED

Landgrave Friedrich II of Hesse-Cassel (1720-1785), sold about 17,000 of his subjects to King George III of England for the purpose of putting down the revolution of the 13 Colonies in 1776. He received $51.15 per head. These sold souls were the famous "Hessians" of the American Revolutionary War. The Landgrave received another $51.15 for every Hessian who died in action, while three wounded men counted as one dead. The ruler, who had 113 illegitimate children of his own, never saw his offspring for 39 years. He left a cash fortune equaling $60,000,000 in purchasing value of today, when he died. Iowa County, Wis., boasts that it has the only Manx built church in America—the Laxey Church—built by settlers from the Isle of Man almost a century ago. Residents of the Isle of Man are known as "Manxmen." The small old church has been used for generations as a place of worship for the Manxmen and their descendants in Iowa County.

Chet smiled, tolerantly, but offered no comment.

"It's none of my business. I understand that, darling. But I want to ask you a question—no matter how tough things look, you're not going to do anything—spectacular, are you?"

"Let us have Done With Old Absurdities" By the Rev. J. F. Newton

W HAT is your pet superstition, good reader? Of course you have one, even if you do look superior and don't it. Honest now, just between ourselves, what is it that gives you the shivers?

Are you willing to walk under a ladder, even if there is no one on top of it, or do you dodge it? If you have not had a cold for months, and happen to speak of it, do you knock wood?

If you spill salt, do you throw a pinch for luck? Are you quite comfortable if a black cat crosses the road, or if a bird gets into the house?

How about if a bat comes to the window? Does it make the shivers run up and down your back? Or if you break a mirror, do you begin to look for the awful thing that is to happen?

Ah, but that would be telling. And what nonsense it is, opposed alike to reason and religion, a bit of old chaos in us. Yet half of my readers will shake their heads and say to me:

"That's all very well, but I remember this and that. My Uncle Henry, my Aunt Annie, my cousin Fred, or the people who live two doors away had a run of bad luck after breaking a mirror."

Then they go into detail, telling how they watched events, expecting ill fortune and it turned up. Yes, all sorts of things happen, and one can pick out facts to fit any fear or fear.

Often we seem to invite misfortune, and when it comes we say, "It is the will of God." What an awful thought that the will of God should be associated only, or chiefly, with dire disaster!

No, all such ideas—if ideas they can be called—are bogies, thin shadows of primitive fear lurking in the mind. They make this wonderful world a place of whim, caprice, and malice.

No such ideas—ideas they can be called—are bogies, thin shadows of primitive fear lurking in the mind. They make this wonderful world a place of whim, caprice, and malice.

"Such as diving from my office window?" Chet said. "Frankly, I'm not so much afraid of falling as I am of being foolish and faithless. They are both foolish and faithless. We live in a world of law, order, beauty and benediction—let's be happy in it!"

"We're going to be Mr. and Mrs. Eddy before long, and that's something to be happy about—or aren't we?"

Chet smiled. "What is all this leading up to, I wonder?"

"This," said Sandra, unsmiling.

"I want you to be honest with me. Would it help any if we moved out of this d-d luxe and I found myself a job somewhere?"

"Just exactly what sort of job?" Chet asked, not trying to hide his amusement.

I had never occurred to Sandra before that anyone questioned her ability to hold a job, but she saw that doubt in her father's laughing eyes now and she said with an assurance she did not feel:

"There are a dozen things I could do—not the usual run of things—something like newspaper reporting. I'd take a swell reporter. Chet, I know it."

Chet, laughing, pulled her down in his lap and put his lips to a smooth temple. Then he said, no laughter in his voice, "I can't see very far ahead just now, honey, but maybe have happened before and we'll hope for the best."

Sandra didn't say anything. She felt he had said all that could be said just now.

Why Great Britain Is Free of Rabies

By Albert Payson Terhune

GAIN and again, it has been pointed out that there is no such disease as rabies in Great Britain. America is advised to stamp out the malady in the same way. Which America cannot do. I'll tell you why.

Great Britain consists chiefly of two islands, neither of them as large as certain single states of our own. A law was passed—and enforced—some years ago, forbidding any dog to enter the country without first submitting to six months of strict quarantine. The British Isles are immune from rabies.

Here in the United States, such legislation would prove absurdly futile. There is a 3,000-mile borderline dividing us from Canada and another wide strip of ground separating us from Mexico. A dog with incipient rabies could wander across either border at will. In Michigan, last winter, a law was enacted, forbidding the presence of unvaccinated dogs in certain parts of the state, with a death penalty for any canine found transgressing the statute.

The law's measures were severe. But what was to prevent dogs from straying into the restricted area from outside and infecting the local canines with the very rare disease of rabies? Nothing!

Meat and Kidney Bean Casserole

Two cups cooked kidney beans, two carrots, one onion, four potatoes, one cup tomatoes, one pound chopped meat, one tablespoon fat, salt, pepper. Brown the meat in the fat. Combine seasonings, kidney beans, tomatoes and cubed carrots, onions and potatoes. Add to the meat and cook until vegetables are soft in a buttered casserole. A one-dish meal that will prove very delicious.

Sardine and Horseradish Canapes

Two tablespoons mashed sardines, two tablespoons butter, one tablespoon horseradish, two tablespoons chopped stuffed olives. Blend all together with a silver fork with the exception of the olives. Spread the paste on rounds of white bread and sprinkle the olives over the top of each one. If preferred, the olives may be sliced and used in a garnish form on top of the paste.

New Suds Discovery Saves Colors!

Try these new "SUCTION SUDS" before you have a bad experience like Mrs. Dick's

FROM the largest soap laboratory in the world, come these new Chipso "SUCTION SUDS." They're thrilling... they draw dirt out.

What an amazing difference in the brightness of colors... in the whiteness of your wash. Read these four marvelous features that only Chipso "SUCTION SUDS" promise you:

"SUCTION SUDS" RESTORE WHITENESS TO YOUR LINENS: Tests show that Chipso restores dingy, gray clothes to brilliant whiteness—far better than soaps tested.

SAFE! COLORS WASH BRIGHTER because Chipso "SUCTION SUDS" wash clothes really clean—with a gentle action that's absolutely safe for colors and materials. YOUR HANDS STAY SMOOTH! Tests show Chipso is as mild as many toilet soaps in effect on your hands... helps keep rough redness away.

ECONOMICAL... GIVES 3x MORE SUDS: Laboratory tests show more actual suds-making material in Chipso. Compared to ordinary package soaps, the big Chipso box gives one-third more suds... goes one-third farther.

Chipso is so speedy, so safe and so economical that women everywhere are changing from cheap soap chips, harsh powders and granulated soaps to this fine-flaked soap. Change with them. Ask for the big blue-and-yellow Chipso package. You'll actually save soap money and save your clothes.

WOMEN OF ST. LOUIS!

Chipso is made especially for water of this city. That means it gives more suds... washes clothes faster... gets them cleaner than other soaps not so well adapted to local water conditions.

The magnifying glass shows you how the fuzzy fibers of cloth catch and hold dirt—like a trap. Rubbing can grind it out. Harsh substances can eat it out. But the new, scientific way in the Chipso way—"SUCTION SUDS" engulf the dirt particles and draw them out. Even delicate washable colors stay fresh—materials stay firm.

Down for the Day

It is perfectly permissible when entertaining a guest from out of town to ask what time they had planned to start for home. Of course, one explains the reason one asks so the day may be planned comfortably and enjoyably with no terrific crush at the end for a train or bus. It is far wiser to know in advance just what can be done in the time the guest will remain at your home.

A spoon is served ordinarily with an avocado pear cut in halves. If the pear is sliced, as it is in an appetizer or a salad, a fork should be provided.

Syrup left over from spiced fruits makes an excellent basting for ham, pork and veal roasts and steaks.

PROPER CARE OF FEET

By Gladys Glad

ACCORDING to folk lore, there was once a Grecian maid whose feet, like Cinderella's, won her a Prince. She was staining the nails of her tiny feet with henna juice one day when an eagle seized her slipper and carried it to the royal palace. The Prince saw it and was so astounded by its tiny size that he set out to find the owner. And of course they were married!

The two most important things in foot care are, first, getting rid of cuticle; and, second, the right kind of massage. Keeping the nail free of cuticle is particularly important, because this is the place where infections are apt to start. If you have a light shade on the fingers, be sure it harmonizes; robin red is good with old rose, burgundy with mauve, cardinal with coral, etc. Or, better yet, wear all twenty of your nails the same deep shade.

Now for plenty of cream and massage. This part of your pedicure routine you should repeat often—than once a week—every night if possible—to have healthy, happy feet. Use a good cream or skin balm and begin at the base of each toe. Grasp the feet firmly between the fingers, and work out to the tip with a spiral, twisting movement.

Devote several minutes to the balls of the feet, rotating the large toe round and round. Now place the thumbs above the big toe, and, holding the fingers under the foot, work thumbs upward over the instep with a rotating movement. Again, using both thumbs, work up the back of the ankle at each side of the tendon.

Massage for at least 10 minutes to relieve strain and relax tense, tired nerves and muscles. After the massage, plunge the feet in cold water, dry and finish by dusting with deodorant powder. Then see how refreshed your feet feel and how really grand they look, as well!

To remove stubborn peach stains from linens, sprinkle with lemon juice and salt and place two days in the hot sun. Rinse out in cold water and wash in warm water and soap suds.

Govern ment Artillery Breaks Up Countertacks and Aircraft Are Beaten Off After They Inflict Slight Damage.

HEAVY FIGHTING
ALL ALONG FRONT

11th Day of Offensive
That Is Intended to Force Insurgents Out of Central Spain and Lift Siege of Capital.

By the Associated Press.
MADRID, July 16.—Insurgent planes bombed Madrid's suburban airfields today while the Government army pushed westward in the eleventh day of its offensive to thrust back the insurgent army in Central Spain and lift siege of the capital.

The insurgent raiders were beaten off after inflicting slight damage to the air bases.

The Government's westward thrust resulted in some of the fiercest fighting of the one-year-old war. Gen. Jose Miaja's militia drove against Villafraanca-del-Castillo, a village near the Coruna road and about 12 miles northwest of Madrid, where the insurgent General, Francisco Franco, was said to have massed fresh troops, heavy artillery and many planes.

Villafraanca lies between the Government forces and the insurgent stronghold, Majadahonda.

Counterattacks Fall.

Insurgent counterattacks at Villaneuva del Castillo, tip of Gen. Jose Miaja's principal spearhead, broke down in the face of the Government's reserve artillery power.

Positions occupied by the Eighteenth Loyalist Force near Villaneuva del Castillo, 18 miles from Madrid at the tip of Miaja's main salient, were bombed and shelled several hours yesterday but the capital's defenders held fast.

Several loud explosions were heard from within Villafraanca del Castillo. Huge columns of smoke rose as Government gunners blasted at the already shell-torn city. The artillery was reported to have scored a direct hit on an insurgent powder magazine.

Boadilla del Monte, about 10 miles west of the capital, which seemed to be another concentration point of the insurgents, was bombed yesterday along with railroad stations and airfields at Aranda de Duero and Talavera de la Reina.

Residents See Air Fight.

Residents of Madrid crowded balconies and other vantage points to watch an air combat yesterday, which ended with the loss of six insurgent and one Government airplane—all pursuit ships.

Government pursuit ships, escorting a squadron of bombers home from a raid, clashed with more than a score of insurgent fighters.
In the aerial free-for-all a Government pilot escaped by parachute while his plane exploded earthward.
Occupants of six insurgent planes were killed when Government machine gunners struck them down on the outskirts of the city.

Meanwhile, the Government admitted its siege of Albaracin, west of Teruel on the Aragon front in Eastern Spain, had been broken when insurgents dislodged Government troops from positions near the town.

Another report from the Aragon front said that a Government column had driven to positions 10 miles from Zaragoza and were within range of hills dominating Majadahonda, near Zaragoza.

Residents Report They Beat Loyalists
Back at Cuesta de la Reina.

By the Associated Press.
MADRID, July 16.—Insurgent headquarters reported today that General Francisco Franco's troops beat back a Government attack near Cuesta de la Reina, inflicting heavy losses on the attackers.

A Government report mentioned an attack yesterday in that sector, about 25 miles south of Madrid, but said several hours of rifle, machine gun and artillery fire made no change in positions.

Franco's command said his troops were continuing their drive against an already dislodged Government force at Albaracin on the Aragon front in Eastern Spain. The insurgent communiqué said 1500 men had been killed there in the few days.
